Sales Tax Bill To Bar Income Levy Deduction Voted

PASSAGE FOLLOWS ATTACK LAUNCHED ON REVISION BODY

Charge That Group Had Spent $40,000 To Fight Howard Bill Results in Its Adoption.

BILL WOULD BRING $500,000 ANNUALLY

Scathing Assault on Park and Tax Revision Group Brings Sharp Reply From Macon Lawyer.

BY R. E. POWELL.

Adoption of the Howard bill to strike out of the general sales tax the provision permitting deduction of income taxes, after a charge had been made that the Georgia Tax Revision Association had raised a fund of $40,000 or more to fight it, featured Wednesday's session of the house ways and means committee. The committee approved the bill 19 to 15.

Attack on the Georgia Tax Revision Association, and on Judge Orville B. Park, its special counsel, in the house committee followed a scathing assault on the latter during the morning session of the house by Representative H. B. Edwards, of Valdosta, and followed also a veiled attack on Judge Park the day before in the senate by Senator Wright.

To the charges made by Edwards, chief of which was that he and his law partner at Macon have received $28,000 from the state in fees, Judge Park late Wednesday issued a statement saying that Edwards had "grossly exaggerated" the total sum paid his firm and adding that he would gladly welcome any investigation by the legislature.

Sales Tax Amendment.

The Howard bill, introduced by the member from Chattahoochee, is an amendment to the sales tax which would require businesses and corporations paying income and gross sales tax to pay both taxes in the full amount assessed rather than being permitted to deduct, as they now may, the amount of income tax from the gross sales tax. Its proponents estimated that it would bring $500,000 into the treasury before the end of 1931, when the gross sales tax expires.

It was during the course of the author's discussion of his bill, set as a special order for the Wednesday meeting of the ways and means committee and the first revenue-raising bill to be approved at the special session, that the attack on the Tax Revision Association broke.

"Three weeks before this extraordinary session of the general assembly met," Howard said, "certain potential income taxpayers met and decided to continue this tax revision association, which already had framed a program for this legislature.

"It raised $30,000 in the city of Atlanta, $10,000 in Columbus and other amounts in other cities. I don't know how much. This association is opposed to my bill, and if this money wasn't raised to influence this legislature, what was it raised for?"

"Does the gentleman from Chattahoochee know how this money has been spent?" Miss Bessie Kempton, the lady from Fulton, inquired.

"They haven't had time to spend it yet," Dr. Howard replied.

Tax Bill Corrections.

The only other measure given committee approval Wednesday was the key bill to provide for correcting certain administrative features of the general tax bill and this was referred, after it had been explained by R. C. Norman, state tax commissioner, to a subcommittee of three with instructions to report it back to the house favorably today.

When the house meets at 10 o'clock this morning, it will have before it for debate the Battle-Allen plan to divert 10 years of Western & Atlantic railroad bills, approved by the commit-

Pershing Witnesses Successful Attack In Region of Aisne

But Allied Morale Suffers Again With Disastrous Defeat of Italians at Caporetto—Germans Use New Attack Methods Advantageously, Bearing Out Pershing's Contentions

CHAPTER XVIII.

Upon the invitation of General Petain I went to the French front to be present at their second offensive since General Nivelle's failure in April, arriving by motor at the headquarters of General d'Esperey, commander of the group of armies of the north, on the evening of October 22.

The plans for the attack were explained to us, and from the extreme care taken in working out the details and from their accurate knowledge of the enemy's forces and his position, there seemed to be little doubt of success.

Soon after their victory near Verdun in August the French had begun to prepare for this offensive, in which they could not well afford to fail. The advance was made by eight divisions of the sixth army on a front of only seven and a half miles, extending along the Aisne, with the object of gaining a more advantageous position for the winter and also still further building up French morale.

General Maistre, the army commander, gave the operation his personal attention, prescribing an artillery preparation covering six days, during which the expenditure of ammunition was even greater than in the offensive of August 20. The long period of artillery fire was considered necessary, as the Germans were strongly fortified along the chalky bluffs of the Aisne, where numerous caverns afforded cover for large garrisons held near the front.

The assaulting lines of infantry, accompanied by numerous tanks, succeeded without difficulty in reaching the limited objectives. Fort Malmaison, the key point, was reduced to a heap of rubbish by the very heavy artilery fire concentrated upon it. The capture of this dominant position by the French caused the immediate withdrawal of the Germans on the right and left, and during the succeeding fortnight they retired behind the Ailette.

As we drove toward the front in the forenoon we met German prisoners being taken to the rear and received reports that progress was very satisfactory. The day was foggy, with rain at intervals, so that aviators were unable to be of much service, and the advance, except at the start, was quite hidden from our view, even from old Fort Conde, a commanding position that had been selected as our observation point.

When the luncheon hour came General d'Esperey asked us into a chamber of the fort, where we sat down and enjoyed a menu that would have done credit to any restaurant in Paris. During the meal the general told us that several years before he had crossed America returning from service in the orient, and his journel across Iowa happened during one of those periods when prohibition was in force in that state. If there is any one thing that a Frenchman cannot understand it is that any people should deliberately enact a law to deprive themselves of the privilege of taking a glass of wine. To have heard him describe how he suffered while passing through Iowa one

BEAVERS LEVELS ATTACK ON POOLE; 4 OFFICERS FIRED

Assistant Chief Charged With 'Trouble-Making'; Drunkenness on Force Scored by Committee.

The iron hand of the James L. Key administration descended Wednesday night on the Atlanta police department, stripping four police officers from the rolls for infractions of regulations, causing a blanket indictment of the entire department by Chief of Police James L. Beavers for drunkenness, and ending with charges by the chief that A. Lamar Poole, assistant chief, is attempting to usurp authority, split the law enforcement division and instigate discord.

Richmond Paul, inspector of weights and measures, and Patrolmen T. J. Smith, J. A. Etheridge and J. D. Buice were those stricken from departmental rolls by order of the committee, and in only one instance was there a division as to the penalty—that of Paul, where one of the four members of the committee present asked for suspension instead of an ouster. Two other patrolmen, J. K. Patterson and M. V. Moss, were suspended for five days.

Members of the committee read the riot act to the department concerning drunkenness and by virtual unanimous consent it was decided that any member of the force against whom such charges are proven in the future will be automatically fired.

Poole Is Blamed.

Declaring that during the past two years, the department "has had more drunks than ever before, even more than the days of the open saloon," Chief Beavers blamed lax discipline on Chief Poole, stating that the men of the department "look to him as chief instead of to me."

Poole was in the room, but did not answer any of the charges or veiled accusations flung at him.

"I have been handicapped in administration of the department because of the notorious 'secret' that members of the department could appeal to Chief Poole and receive leniency for infractions of rules," Beavers said. "Drunkenness has been worse in the past two years than at any time in the department's history, even the days of the open saloon. It is whispered, 'Don't go to Beavers, go to Poole,' by members of the force.

"The situation is acute. It is rumored that Chihef Poole leaves executive sessions of the committee to tell what goes on inside this room. I am saying they are rumors because I do not know."

Lowe Trial Cited.

Beavers cited the trial of John Lowe, former detective, as an example of what he termed Poole's protection.

Members of the committee assured Beavers of their co-operation, adding that members must regard him as the chief and asserting that they are look-

Carnegie Medals Given To Three Georgians

This picture, taken immediately after Smith B. West, of Atlanta, had saved two little boys from being bitten by a rabid dog, shows the hero being congratulated by young James T. Landers, playmate of the rescued boys. West was given a Carnegie medal for his courage.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 28.—(AP)—A schoolboy who died attempting to save a companion was among three Georgia residents whose bravery was recognized today by the Carnegie hero fund commission in the form of bronze medal awards.

The awards were made to B. Carey Gordy, 406 Marguerits street, LaGrange, Ga., in behalf of his dead son, Emmett A. Gordy, 19; Smith B. West, 21, of 577 English avenue, Atlanta; and Maxie L. Smith, 19, of Rural Route 2, Cartersville, Ga.

Young Gordy drowned while attempting to save Frederick B. Frosolono, 15, of LaGrange, September 6, 1929. A current carried Frosolono into a hole at the foot of a dam in Peach creek where the water was 10 feet deep. Frosolono clambered on a rock four feet under water and maintained

31 MINERS KILLED AS POWDER BLAST RIPS INDIANA MINE

Only Two Men Taken Alive From Gas-Filled Workings After Lethal Explosion.

LINTON, Ind., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Thirty-one miners were killed late today when an explosion wrecked the west entry of the Little Betty shaft mine near here.

More than six hours after the blast five bodies had been carried to the surface, two miners were in a Linton hospital, where one died early, and 25 others lay in the depths of the mine, hope for their survival abandoned by rescue workers. Mine officials said poisonous black damp which followed the blast filled the mine and that the men would be found dead.

The explosion was generally attributed to ignition of 000 pounds of blasting powder which was carried into the mine for the shot firers. Later, however, reports were current that the blast was caused by gas. Debris filled the entries, hampering rescue work as well as investigation of the cause.

Had the explosion occurred 10 minutes earlier, most of the 115 men on the day force at the mine might have been trapped.

Highways near the mine were blocked with automobiles tonight for a distance of two miles. At the mine mouth hundreds of persons were milling about, including many wives and children of miners. Many of the women grew hysterical and were restrained with difficulty.

A call for additional workers was issued tonight and the volunteers were warned that they were risking their lives in entering the mine.

It was hoped to bring all of the bodies out of the mine during the night.

Don Burris, one of the men rescued, told of the explosion from his hospital bed. "I was ahead of the gang coming out of the mine. The explosion occurred all of a sudden and the lights went out. I grabbed a trolley wire and followed it toward the mine mouth. I called to the gang to follow me. I went as far as I could and then everything went black and I don't remember any more until some men were leading me into the fresh air.

"All I know yet is that Earl Bedwell was brought out. I guess we were farther off to the head of the entry, the tenth west. Otherwise we would not have been able to get out and none of the others could have either.

"I didn't see any flash or any fire. The damps must have fanned to us and put us out instantly. That is what I am afraid now has happened to the other boys."

Earl Bedwell, the other man rescued from the mine, died late tonight.

YOUNG ATLANTAN IS BADLY WOUNDED AND MAIL STOLEN

PISTOL IS FOUND ALONGSIDE TRACK

Posses Formed by Sheriff Davis, of Thomas County, Search for Bandit; Victim Is in Hospital.

MERRILLVILLE, Ga., Jan. 28.—(Special.)—Overpowering and shooting down the single clerk, a lone bandit tonight robbed the mail car of an Atlanta-bound A., B. & C. train here and escaped with a consignment of registered mail, most of which was bound for Atlanta.

The clerk, 22-year-old Mell T. Prather, of 450 Sterling street, N. E., Atlanta, is in the Atlanta, Birmingham & Coast hospital at Moultrie, wounded seriously but not dangerously. He was shot through both legs, just above the knees, the same bullet passing through both limbs.

The value of the registered mail consignment stolen in the robbery had not been determined tonight but it was said was much smaller than the bandit would have obtained under ordinary circumstances. The consignment was gathered in Thomasville, where the train originated and ordinarily the pouch is much larger than it was tonight, according to Mrs. J. B. Rozenbery, postmistress at Thomasville.

Immediately after news of the robbery spread over this section, posses were formed by Sheriff Gordon Davis, of Thomas county, and his chief deputy, T. H. White, and a widespread search for the bandit launched. Sheriff White put through a hurried call to Cairo for bloodhounds and within two hours after the holdup the dogs were attempting to pick up the robber's trail.

Gives Incoherent Story.

At Moultrie, young Prather was said to be able to give only an incoherent story of the robbery and a faint description of the bandit, whom he described to be "short and apparently white."

The bandit is believed to have swung aboard the mail car just as the train left Merrillville for Coolidge, a small town five miles distant. Sheriff Davis said from his investigation and what he could learn indirectly from Prather the bandit immediately jumped on the young clerk, overpowered him and shot him with his own gun, grabbing the mail pouch and alighting from the train before it picked up momentum.

The robbery was not discovered until the train reached Coolidge, when members of the train crew found Prather lying wounded on the floor of his car. Persons at Merrillville, when news of the robbery was flashed to this city, said they saw a short, squat man alight from the train just as it

MELLON OPPOSED TO CASH FOR VETS

Secretary Says Plan Would Put Dangerous Burden on U. S. Treasury.

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon told the senate finance committee today that proposals for cashing the bonus certificates of World War veterans are without "economic merit" and instead of improving conditions would "deepen" the world depression.

Mellon was closely questioned as he predicted a treasury deficit of $375,000,000 and warned the cash conversion plan would not only have "serious consequences" on public credit but would "greatly disturb world equilibrium."

The veteran treasury secretary had barely concluded his statement of the administration's opposition when Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, a democratic member of the committee, told the senate "a majority of the committee is going to favor some relief."

Harrison announced he favored paying the veterans the present cash value of their certificates.

Mellon's personal appearance was considered by committee members as added evidence of the administration's strong attitude toward the proposed legislation. It increased the belief among some senators that President Hoover would veto a bill to pay the veterans the face value of their certificates.

Mellon's prepared statement, which was read to the committee by Undersecretary Mills, confined its attack to the proposal for paying the face value of the certificates which would cost about $3,400,00,000.

Later, however, Mills said the same objections would apply, to lesser degree, to the proposal to pay the present value of the certificates, the cost of which has been estimated at from $1,700,000,000 to $2,100,000,000.

"It's only a matter of degree," Mills said. "One would cost $3,400,000,000 and the other $2,100,000,000."

Members of the committee did not wait for the reading of Mellon's statement before beginning to question him. The treasury secretary and his assistant, sitting on either side of Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, the acting chairman, alternated in answering the questions.

Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, a long time foe of Mellon, took a leading part in the questioning.

Replying to questions by Senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, Mills estimated the public debt has been retired in the last 10 years to the extent of $3,459,000,000 more than required by law.

Harrison interjected that the debt had been retired beyond requirements of law "by overtaxing the people."

"It is a strange coincidence," Couz-

HEFLIN TO OPPOSE BANKHEAD SEATING

Defeated Alabaman Files Formal Notice of Contest in Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Formal notice of a contest against the seating of Senator-elect John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, was given in the senate today by Senator Heflin, who was defeated by Bankhead in the last election.

Heflin, who ran as an independent after being forced off the democratic ticket because he bolted the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 election, said his petition would charge fraud, intimidation, coercion, bribery and illegal expenditure of funds in the election. Bankhead was the regular democratic candidate.

The notice, which was read by a senate clerk, said Senator Heflin would charge "fraudulent violations of the law and irregularities" in the casting of great numbers of illegal and fraudulent votes in each of the 67 counties.

In addition, the notice said Heflin would charge "illegal and fraudulent use of absentee ballots; counting of ballots contrary to the way they were cast; illegal and fraudulent rejection of ballots properly cast for Senator Heflin; illegal expenditure of funds to defeat Senator Heflin, and resorting to intimidation, coercion and bribery as a means of defeating him."

It was not certain tonight what effect the Heflin move would have on the Norris resolution to extend the powers of the senate campaign funds committee to seize ballot boxes in the last senatorial election, including Alabama.

The resolution is on the calendar, but when first considered some democratic senators opposed it on the ground that such seizures would be an invasion of states' rights unless a contest were pending.

Heflin, at that time, said he had withheld filing of a contest because of fear the ballot would be destroyed.

12 STATE SCHOOLS FACING ABOLITION

House Appropriations Committee Votes Measure After 2-Hour Debate

Abolition of 12 state agricultural and mechanical schools and junior colleges was voted Wednesday afternoon by the house appropriations committee, 21 to 17, following two hours of hot debate. At the same time, 50 county school superintendents and board members, in a session with the house education committee, appealed for payment of the state debts to the common schools.

The appropriations committee decided to report favorably a substitute bill by Representative D. J. Arnold, of Henry county, withdrawing appropriations from the 12 schools and ordering sale of the grounds, plants and equipment of the institutions to the counties in which they are located for the price of $1 each Money saved by the bill would apply on payment of unpaid appropriations due other state institutions. It was voted to withdraw appropriations from the Georgia Military college at Milledgeville, but not to sell the grounds or plant.

The substitute bill eliminates from the act's provisions the schools at Statesboro, Tifton and Douglas. The schools affected and the amounts involved follow: Bowden State Normal and Industrial, $27,000; Middle Georgia A. & M., Cochran, $50,000; Fourth District A. & M., Carrollton, $30,000; Fifth District A. & M., Monroe, $30,000; Sixth District A. & M., Barnesville, $30,000; Seventh District A. & M., Powder Springs, $25,000; Eighth District A. & M., Madison, $30,000, Ninth District A. & M., Clarkesville, $30,000; Tenth District A. & M., Granite Hill, $30,000; Georgia Military College, Milledgeville, $10,000; Forsyth A. & M., $12,500, and State Agricultural and Normal, American, $40,000.

The bill would allow for operation of the institutions until June 1 and for payment of debts contracted be-

MEMBER DEFENDS U. S. FARM BOARD

Hostility of Cotton Shippers Association Natural, Says Schilling.

The object of the federal farm board's marketing act is to assist producers in marketing their cotton, and hostility from dealers who have been speculating in this commodity for many years is only to be expected, according to W. F. Schilling, member of the poultry and dairy division of the federal farm board, who stopped here Wednesday to confer with J. E. Conwell, president of the Georgia Cotton Growers' Co-operative Association.

The statement from Mr. Schilling, who is en route from Athens, where he spoke at the annual farmers' week and marketing conference, to Bellefontaine, Ohio, where he is scheduled to speak at a creamery meeting, was made in connection with the attack on federal farm board marketing operations launched by the American Cotton Shippers' Association before the appropriations committee of the senate Wednesday.

"We are having similar fights with all other commodities, and are getting used to it," Mr. Schilling said, and added, "knowing the facts, it should be very easy for producers to decide whether to be aligned with speculators and dealers, or with the federal farm board."

Diversification of farm activities is seen by Mr. Schilling as the only means of salvation for agriculture in Georgia. Himself one of the founders of the famous "Twin City Milk Producers," of St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn., with which he served as president for 12 years, Mr. Schilling is heartily in favor of dairy activities as a balance for the present one-sided cotton situation.

"The boll weevil may prove a blessing in disguise just as the chinch-bug, which destroyed so much wheat in my native state, Minnesota, and the army worm, which killed our oats, proved blessings. It was a question of dairy-or-die with the farmers of Minnesota, so they gradually grew into the dairy business, till last year Minnesota shipped 279,000,000 pounds of butter, and the little community in which I live, a town of only 4,000 people, surrounded by good dairy farms, has $4,600,000 in the three banks and a co-operative creamery that paid to its farmers $760,000 in cash last year for cream and milk alone."

JURY DEADLOCKED IN SWANSON CASE

No Verdict in Prospect as Body Is Ordered Locked Up for Night.

Failing to reach a verdict after six hours of deliberation, a superior court jury trying J. Clyde Swanson for murder in connection with the death early last September of Helen Bryant, was locked up on orders from Trial Judge E. D. Thomas shortly after 10 o'clock Wednesday night. It will resume its deliberations today.

Efforts to learn how the jury stood were futile, but the 11 men were said to be hopelessly deadlocked and of the belief that no verdict would be reached. Judge Thomas said he would give the jury most of today to determine Swanson's fate.

The case went to the jury at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, after a two-day trial.

Assistant Solicitor-General Ed A. Stephens, who directed the prosecution of Swanson, asked for a verdict convicting the painter of first degree murder, charging that he either killed the girl and threw her body into the river or caused her death by drowning. Mr. Stephens made both the opening and closing arguments for the state.

"This man has admitted here on the witness stand that within several hours after the girl's death he attempted to end his own life but was too cowardly to carry out the act," Mr. Stephens said. "He knew this girl's body would be found and he would be called upon to answer for her death. She was killed deliberately."

Frank Grizzard and John I. Kelley, of Lawrenceville, counsel for Swanson, argued for the defense.

"The case is one of purely circumstantial evidence," Mr. Grizzard said. "The state has proved nothing but that Swanson, a married man, associated with the girl and was with her on the night before she is presumed to have met her death. We say he is a victim of circumstances but that the circumstances do not prove a single thing on him."

Senator Kelley in the closing defense argument asserted that the prosecution did not offer "one iota of evidence linking Swanson with the girl's death."

"There hasn't been a single thing proven in this court," Senator Kelley charged. "The only evidence is that the poor girl's body was found floating in the river and that she had been with Swanson several nights previously as she had been on numerous occasions. They have not proven that she was murdered. They have not proved how she came to her death and they have not even proved where she died. There is nothing on earth by which this man can be convicted of killing her."

Earlier in the day Swanson had

RED CROSS SPURNS PROFFERED U. S. AID

Rejection of Half-Enacted $25,000,000 Contribution Arouses Protest.

BY HERBERT LITTLE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(UP)—The Red Cross today rejected the half-enacted $25,000,000 federal appropriation for relief of the hungry and destitute over the nation. A storm of protest against the relief organization and President Hoover, who supports its attitude, immediately arose.

Chairman John Barton Payne, of the Red Cross, announced to a house appropriations subcommittee that the Red Cross central committee has voted unanimously against accepting the fund voted by the senate as an amendment to the interior appropriation bill.

Payne's action was a climax in the stubborn fight between the senate and the president over relief. This is only one of a half dozen serious breaches during the present session, but it is the one most likely to force a special session. Democrats are solidly for federal relief, and so are many republicans. President Hoover is president of the Red Cross.

Questioned during two sessions today, Payne finally charged with heat that "congress is trying to put the Red Cross in a bad position." He said the Red Cross has taken the job of drouth relief in 21 states, and promised to carry it through to completion, "if it costs three times what we think it will."

Payne estimated 1,000,000 persons would be under Red Cross care by February 1, but that by the middle of March farmers would be occupied with spring planting. "We ought to be out of there by the first of April," he said.

Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, denounced the Red Cross on the senate floor and suggested it might be necessary to provide the funds voted to some other relief agency.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, democrat, New York, termed the decision cruel, and "outrageous" and said he did not believe the Red Cross membership would endure it. "We cannot permit our people to die, and that's what we are doing," he said.

SENATE DEBATES FUND 'DIVERSION'

Lane Bill, Sending All Revenue Into Treasury, Up Again Today.

Weighted with amendments excepting certain allocations and appropriations from its provisions, the Lane bill "diverting" all state revenue into the general treasury to be prorated among departments, is scheduled to come up in the senate this morning for further debate and to be placed on passage.

Predictions were made Wednesday afternoon that the Lane bill would pass, possibly with amendments, by a slim margin. Proponents of the measure claim to have enough strength to obtain a favorable vote. It was taken up by the senate Wednesday immediately following passage of the King convict road labor bill, and was attacked by Senator Shelby Myrick, of the first, who voiced vigorous opposition to any move to divert highway funds.

If the senate disposes of the Lane bill today, the tax commission bill will be called up for its third reading and passage, with a possibility of passage as an amended measure. Opposition to the tax commission centers chiefly around the personnel of the commission as proposed in Senator Goode's bill.

Myrick Attacks Bill.

Myrick, charging that the Lane general fund bill contains "more dynamite than any bill introduced at this session of the legislature," said that the bill repeals every allocation or special appropriation of every department, and that it does not come within the governor's call. Myrick warned the senate that "if the bill is passed we will have another extra session of the general assembly to clear up the wrongs it will do."

Senator H. F. Lawson, of the fourteenth, contended that the bill is clearly within the governor's call. Senator J. M. Pitner, of the fiftieth, also spoke for the Lane bill.

Amendment by Hyman.

An amendment by Senator J. E. Hyman, of the twentieth, provides that the bill shall not affect funds heretofore appropriated or allocated to the common schools, to the equalization funds, to the counties and to the payment of pensions. Senator F. C. Williams, of the sixteenth, offered an amendment excepting from the bill's provisions the revenues, licenses and taxes now allocated to the highway and game and fish departments. Senator B. B. Zellars, of the thirtieth, introduced an amendment eliminating the one cent gas tax to the counties and the one cent gas tax to the common equalization fund from the bill's provisions.

Debate on the King bill, a measure to compel the highway department to use felony and misdemeanor convicts on the roads when counties do not requisition convicts, was concluded by Senator John A. Smith, of the twenty-fifth, chairman of the penitentiary committee, who said heavy local taxes form the real burden of the taxpayer, and these are caused largely by maintenance of county chain gangs. The bill passed by a vote of 30 to 18, carrying with it an amendment by Senator George L. Goode, of the thirty-first, allowing the highway department to contract with counties for use of county gangs and equipment, and committee amendments exempting females, youths under 17, and aged, diseased and disabled convicts from the bill's provisions. Senator Myrick served notice of reconsideration, but adoption by 29 to 12 of a motion to transmit the bill to the house immediately prevents such a move.

An amendment by Senator Sam Matthews, of the twenty-third, which would have given the highway board full authority over convicts used on the roads and allow the board to buy a prison farm, was defeated by a vote of 26 to 22.

One other bill is ready for third reading and passage following action on the tax commission measure. This is Senator H. G. Vandeviere's bill to enforce collection of ad valorem taxes on automobiles.

Past history and the future outlook of Masonry in Georgia formed the theme of the address delivered by William G. Mealor, of Gainesville, grand master of the grand lodge of Georgia, before the weekly luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Masonic Club at the Piedmont hotel Wednesday.

Attended by three past grand masters and leading officers of several other lodges, the meeting was said to have been one of the most inspiring in recent years. Among those present were Past Grand Masters Raymund Daniel, W. S. Richardson and Thomas H. Jeffries; James B. Nevin, John S. Cohen and Clark Howell, editors of the three Atlanta newspapers; B. C. Broyles, past president, and Lionel H. Keene, president of the local club.

The future of the Masonic home at Macon, Mr. Mealor said, is brighter than at any time in the past as the result of certain alterations recently in the managerial staff, and the speaker in large measure credited Mr. Daniel with the improvements that have resulted.

Principles of Masonry were reviewed by the grand master, who urged that the standard of selectivity for membership be maintained on a high plane, not only with regard for the previous character and reputation of a candidate but with a view to the probable future of his deportment.

Activity of J. K. Orr in the Biblical proverbs essay contest conducted each year among Georgia youths was lauded by the speaker, who advocated continuance of this movement as a means of acquainting boys throughout the state with the Bible, and through that means, to give them an insight into the principles of Masonry.

The luncheon meeting was presided over by Lionel H. Keene, and the program was under the direction of W. E. Dunn. Entertainment features consisted of songs by Miss Beulah Mae Drummond, talented soprano, accompanied at the piano by Leroy Petty.

GEORGIA'S U. S. TAXES LOWER BY $4,237,271

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Reflecting general economic conditions existing throughout the country during the past year, the state of Georgia paid the federal government some $4,237,271 less taxes in 1930 than the year previous, a report released today by the treasury department revealed.

Internal revenue receipts from the state amounted to $9,060,147, representing corporation and income tax payments due for the calendar year, 1929. The same payments for the previous year were $13,297,419.53.

Georgia corporation taxes fell off from $8,730,212 in 1929 to $5,882,837 in 1930. Personal income tax payments were reduced from $4,567,206 in 1929 to $3,177,310 last year.

CENSUS MAY ADD $500,000 IN TAXES

United States census figures are being utilized to corral tax dodgers and the result bids fair to add $500,000 this year to the income of the borough, J. C. Little, tax assessor, informed the tax committee of council Wednesday afternoon.

The committee declined to take any action on numerous petitions of quasi charitable institutions seeking tax exemptions, but stood firmly behind the ruling of City Attorney James L. Mayson that any rebates are illegal. Members expressed themselves as being in sympathy with every one of the appeals but decided that all "actions of the committee this year will be within the laws as expounded by Mayson."

At the same session of the committee, J. Henson Tatum, city clerk, declared that business license receipts for January of this year so far are $98,666 as compared with $101,201 for January, 1930, and added that inspectors of his department have, through an inspection of local hotels, added more than 800 rooms to the digests. The borough collects a fee of $1.50 a room.

According to the census report, 63,000 living in the borough of Atlanta are liable to street taxes at $3 a year each, but only 20,000 are on the digests, Little stated. A drive is now in full force to add the others, and with real and personal property which also accompany those added, it is estimated that approximately $500,000 will be collected.

The committee discussed more stringent methods to force employers to furnish the borough government with lists of their employes, but no definite action was taken. It is expected, however, that some move will be made in this direction within the next few weeks.

Marshal's collections since January 23 were listed at $3,200, a decided increase over corresponding periods of previous years, Little explained, due to operations of a larger corps of workers. This money came in on old fi. fas.

A feature of the petitions for tax exemptions was a threat of Mrs. Thornton Fincher, president of the Woman's Club, to investigate what private corporations and individuals are paying as borough taxes, in the event their petition for a reduction in the assessments against the Woman's Club property were denied.

She declared the assessment was not fair.

"Our property ought to be tax free," she added.

Among others who appeared before the committee seeking exemptions, in addition to a number of churches, who asked reductions on parsonage listings, were:

Mrs. Warren D. White, of the Atlanta Chapter U. D. C.; Mrs. B. C. Ward, of the Joseph Habersham Chapter D. A. R.; Mrs. Chester Johnson, of the West End Woman's Club; Mrs. Marvin Williams, president of the Georgia Chapter Women's Christian Temperance Union; W. H. Terrell, of the Atlanta Masonic Club; R. N. Fickett, Jr., potentate, representing Yaarab Temple Shrine Mosque, and Dr. L. C. Fischer, of Davis-Fischer sanitarium.

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

Dairying in South Is Seen As Factor in Farm Relief

Farmer's Own Table Best Market for Products, Says U. S. Official at Athens Conference.

BY W. J. DAVIS.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Farm relief through the dairy cow for Dixie farmers was promised today by J. H. McClain, extension dairyman of the United States department of agriculture.

McClain told attendants at the twenty-fourth annual farmers' week and marketing conference at the Georgia State College of Agriculture that dairying has come south to stay, and will be an important factor in bringing about the much discussed farm relief.

"The cow cannot bring you relief with the speed of a fire truck," he declared, "but she is going to bring it, just as surely as southern farmers are going to keep on growing cotton."

The farmer's own table is the best market for his dairy products, the speaker declared. The greatest progress in dairying has been made, he said, through the distribution of a little money to the small farmers of the south at regular intervals through the cream and butter he has been able to sell.

McClain pointed to the successful operation of co-operative creameries at Washington, Ga., where $130,000 has been distributed to farmers during the past two years, and said that one of the shining examples of the south is found in Mississippi, where a small co-operative creamery has distributed $20,000 a month in milk checks regularly for the past 20 years.

The dairy industry holds a good future for the southern farmer, McClain said, but its success depends upon the adoption of the right principles. There must be feed grown on the farm for the cattle, he declared.

The "share cropper" system of dairying was advocated by Mr. McClain for farmers in all southeastern states. It has paid in Mississippi, Oklahoma and Texas, he declared, and it will pay in all southern states.

"It will shift the burden of 'furnishing the tenant' from the landlord to the cow," he asserted, "and will thus make better times for all of them. It is the sensible and practical thing for farmers and tenants to do."

There is no chance for a man who wants to go into the dairy business and "buy everything," McClain said. Good results have been obtained by growing legume hay and rutabagas for cow feed without grain, he pointed out, and urged the adoption of good bulls, cheap feed production and hard work for making dairying the medium of bringing about farm relief in Dixie.

W. F. Schilling Speaks.

W. F. Schilling, of Minnesota, dairy member of the federal farm board, in an address challenged southern farmers to "dairy or die." He urged the necessity of replacing the cotton fields with cow pastures to bring prosperity to this section.

Minnesota, he said, has more fertile land now than ever, and that not a dollar is spent for fertilizer. Cattle, properly managed not only give the farmer an income, but build up his land at the same time.

Dairying has pulled Minnesota farmers out of a similar condition now faced by southern farmers, Schilling declared, and the history of the south can be written in the same words as that of the west, if the word cotton is substituted for that of wheat.

"My advice to young boys is to grow into the dairy business," he declared. "Co-operation is necessary for the successful management of the dairy or any other farm program.

"We have been begging you fellows down here to co-operate, but you won't do it. How then are we going to help you?" he asked. "I came down here to shove you into the co-operative so that the federal farm board can do you some good. There is nothing to your game of farming until you organize and stay organized."

The 12 master farmers of Georgia were entertained today at a luncheon by the Athens Rotary Club. These men were honored through the efforts of J. G. Oliver, assistant state agent of Athens, and W. C. Lassetter, managing editor of The Progressive Farmer.

Other speakers on today's program included John M. Graham, president of the Georgia Bankers' Association, who spoke on rural credits, and Mrs. Harper Tucker, who explained the work of the home demonstration council. Dr. John R. Fain led a discussion of the agricultural situation this afternoon.

"Pay-Up Week" Observed By Waycross Citizens

WAYCROSS, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP) Wednesday Waycross began observing "Pay-Up Week," as designated in a proclamation by Mayor Henry Carswell.

The mayor's proclamation said: "The businesses of a community and all the people prosper to the degree that credit is observed strictly and paid promptly, thus releasing new credit that can be used for the development of the community." The mayor urged the prompt payment of financial obligations by individuals and businesses alike, and suggested that where payment in full of all obligations is not possible that a part be paid on all outstanding obligations.

FARMING IS BUSINESS, SAYS JOHN M. GRAHAM

Same Credit Requirements as in Other Lines of Trade Are Applied.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—John M. Graham, president of the Georgia Bankers' Association told the annual farmers week-end marketing conference today that farming is a business and has the same fundamental credit requirements that apply to other lines of business.

Mr. Graham said he decided years ago that the banker had no great problem in extending credit to a farmer and that his experiments have shown him the same business principles may be used in dealing with a tiller of the soil as with the merchant or manufacturer.

"The banker, of course, satisfies himself as to the manner in which his customer runs his business," he said, "and if to him it occurs at times that his customer is engaged in unsound practices, then the question is frankly discussed and an understanding arrived at.

Farmer Resented Statement.

"There was a time, and not so many years ago, when the farmer resented making an annual statement to the banker; that time is now passed and the statement is always forthcoming."

Graham said his activity in the extension of credit to farmers began in 1921, when credit conditions were such that there was little available to the farmer. It was the man who had his smokehouses and barns filled with food and feed, he declared that was able to carry on. This gave birth to the idea of looking around to see what the worth while farm customers were doing.

The conclusion reached, said the speaker, was that sooner or later a farmer who depends upon an all-cotton program, goes broke.

"We have been doing very well with the farmer over this period of nine years," said Graham, "though we all know that conditions have been very much against him. We have been his friend and he knows it. Some of our efforts have been worth while, but others have not; however, our efforts resulted in the confidence of the farmers in our section and they at least give us credit for being honest when we tell them that we do not think it safe for us to extend them credit unless they 'live at home.'

"The soundness of our method of extending farm credits has received wide approval. The federal farm board had it reprinted last spring and gave it wide distribution."

Graham told of the formation of an agricultural board in each county under the plan recommended by the State College of Agriculture and of the plans for carrying on work with the farmers this year.

He pointed out that bankers of other southern states are interested in the Georgia plan, and made the prediction that "should all farmers in the cotton states produce all the food and feed crops needed for consumption on their own farms, then there would be no overproduction of cotton, and a healthy move in the way of diversification would be under way."

Other speakers on Wednesday's program included J. M. McLain, extension dairyman, of the United States department of agriculture, and Clarence Poe, farm editor, of Raleigh, North Carolina.

Officials of state college declared they are well pleased with the large attendance at the conference this year. The illness of Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president, has been a disappointing factor since this is the first time in 24 years that he has not presided at the general meetings. He is confined to his home and will not likely attend any meeting during the week.

Mr. Seaton produced 49.11 bushels per acre and made a profit of $26.88 per acre. His score was 41.34 points. He was not eligible for the first two prizes because he won first prize in the 1929 contest.

The fourth and fifth prizes were awarded to G. C. Pittard, of Clarke county, and L. F. Kimsey, of Whitfield county, respectively. A $35 prize went to Mr. Pittard as a result of placing fourth and of his producing 35.07 bushels per acre with a profit of $15.76. Mr. Pittard scored 31.01 points to secure a fourth place rating. The profit of $5.26 per acre and a yield of 29.27 bushels placed Mr. Kimsey in running for fifth place and $25. His rating was 21.81 points.

First place in the south Georgia division of the contest this year went to H. D. Evans, of Lowndes county. The $125 prize is a result of his producing 112.65 bushels per acre at a total profit of $317.95. Mr. Evans scored 77.12 points out of a possible perfect record.

J. H. Sims, of Lowndes county, produced 104.33 bushels of corn per acre at a profit of $67.63 per acre. In recognition of this accomplishment he was awarded $100 as second prize. His score was 75.84.

Hugh McLeod, also of Lowndes county, captured third honor in the contest this year and won the $75 prize. He produced 130.24 bushels of corn per acre at a total profit of $425.75. Mr. McLeod was not eligible for first and second places because of having won first prize in the 1928 contest.

Again Lowndes county, with Gus McLeod representing her, steps into the next place, thereby taking the first four honors in the south Georgia division. Mr. McLeod, with a yield of 122.24 bushels per acre and a profit of $82.02 per acre, was awarded fourth place. His rating was 87.82 points. He also was ineligible for the first and second places because of having won first in the 1928 contest.

The other six winners in the south Georgia division of the Georgia five-acre corn production contest are as follows:

Fifth prize of $50 goes to B. T. Mallard, Bulloch county. His yield was 85.54 bushels per acre; profit, $64.84 per acre; rating, 69.17 points.

Sixth prize of $40 goes to John W. Lee, Turner county; his yield was 89.62 bushels per acre; profit, $60.72 per acre; rating, 67.95 points.

Seventh prize of $35 goes to J. O. V. Lineberger, Lowndes county; his yield was 87.35 bushels per acre; profit, $52.31 per acre; rating 63.81 points.

Eighth prize of $30 goes to Emmett Smith, Tift county; his yield was 82.08 bushels per acre; profit, $50.07 per acre; rating, 64.08 points.

Ninth prize of $25 goes to Thomas Cook, Pulaski county; yield was 70.60 bushels per acre; profit, $32.46 per acre; rating, 50.06 points.

Tenth prize of $20 goes to John Allen, Peach county; his yield was 57.56 bushels per acre; profit, $37.11 per acre; rating, 48.36 points.

Fight Against Night Work Nearly Won, Says Sloan

Textile Institute Attains 73 1-2 Per Cent Support in Program, Asserts Cotton President.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, Wednesday told members of the Macon Rotary Club the institute is "on the verge of announcing success" in its recommendation to abolish night work for women and children.

He declared there is "absolutely no justification" for night operation by women and children, and none for night work for men except in cases of emergency, or great demand. The institute has attained 73 1-2 per cent support in its program, to be carried out voluntarily by the mills, he added.

Figures for the last eight years showed that the cotton mills have been operated on the lines of a hacksaw, he said, showing high peaks followed by drastic curtailments. Summing the statistics both for day and night work he said the average for those years showed that the industry had been operating on 96 per cent of a normal day's shift.

"Isn't that alone sufficient to show that this industry should be on a day basis?" Mr. Sloan asked, adding, however, that it was the "social reasons that inspired this movement."

Mr. Sloan was introduced by W. D. Anderson, president of the Bibb Manufacturing Company, who declared that the institute is engaged in the "most stupendous work of its kind ever undertaken"—that of stabilizing a fundamental industry.

"Leaders in the cotton industry, including Mr. Anderson," Mr. Sloan said, "are trying to get the industry on regular, and what approximates full, operation. It would mean the end of operating 24 hours a day—too many of our mills run promiscuously day and night."

He declared that night operation started during the war, when "there was some justification for it." Not only is the employment of women and minors at night now lacking in justification, he added, but "a man has no place in a cotton mill at night, except in some calamity, or shortage of cotton goods."

He explained that the institute recommended the voluntary change in policy last October, to be effective after March 1. The mill executives have subscribed to the plan provided 75 per cent of those operating both day and night and day agree to the reform.

Mr. Sloan, asserting the institute was just short of announcing its success, referred to the difficulty of carrying the recommendation to the 14,000 to 15,000 mills in the United States. The textile industry is the largest in the United States, he said, employing more than 1,600,000 people, with more than 500,000 in the cotton mills.

Atlanta Weather Hasn't Changed In 52 Years, Von Herrmann Says

BY FOSTER EATON,
United Press Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1931, by United Press.)

Every time the weather shows a difference of 10 or 15 degrees from normal, up or down, anywhere, the welkin usually echoes with the old familiar chorus:

"The winters are getting colder," or "the summers are sure getting hotter."

But that's just so much "meteorological bosh" in the expert opinion of C. H. von Herrmann, 70-year-old government weather forecaster of Atlanta, who has watched his thermometers and barometers for 47 uninterrupted years.

"That goes not only for the southeast, which frequently has some unseasonable weather, but for every other section of the world," von Herrmann told the United Press Wednesday in commenting on reports of rather widespread apprehension about the weather down this way.

"I have studied the weather for nearly a half century," he said, "not only from personal observation but from careful computations and from every known book on the subject, and I know of not a single justification for any suspicion that weather conditions are changing, anywhere in the world.

"The memory of the average human being, you know, is woefully short. 'One swallow doesn't make a summer,' and, by the same token, one cold day doesn't make a cold year. If you don't feel inclined to believe that, look at this stack of records."

Neatly adjusted records of the weather of Atlanta for the last 52 years bore out what von Herrmann insisted was the same true story the world over, namely, that in and out, year after year, your weather has been just about the same and may be expected to continue that way.

"There are records reaching back 300 years in the city of Paris, France, and they tell the same unfaltering story," he said.

Von Herrmann recently satisfied his own personal curiosity by computing the average temperature for the city of Atlanta over a period of 52 years. He figured the actual average for that long period by taking the maximum and minimum for each day, then each week.

"You probably won't believe it, but the average for that first week, way back 52 years ago, was exactly and positively identical with the grand average of the entire 52 years," he said.

"Not much change in that."

Atlanta's coldest year was 1885, when the yearly average was 59, and its hottest year was 1922, when the average was 64—a difference of only five degrees in nearly 40 years. Its coldest day was February 13, 1899, eight below zero; its hottest day last July 12, 103.

"We labor under difficulties, trying to supply 'changing weather' information which simply doesn't exist," he said. "It's unmitigated and unsubstantiated meteorological bosh."

THREE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Just recently the scientific world observed the three hundredth anniversary of the discovery of quinine. Quinine for years was recognized as the leading medicine cabinet necessity but today aspirin has taken its place as first seller in drug stores. Just as quinine is quinine, so aspirin is either aspirin or it is not aspirin. The tremendous public acceptance of "St.Joseph's" Pure Aspirin to the tune of nine million boxes a year is due largely to the fact that the medical profession and public alike have learned that it conforms to every government standard and is as pure as money can buy.

"St.Joseph's" Pure Aspirin is sold in convenient tins of one dozen five grain tablets of guaranteed pure aspirin for 10c and thousands have learned that it is neither sensible nor necessary to pay more.

NOW, SHE ENJOYS FOODS THAT USED TO MAKE HER ILL

"For about a year it seemed like everything I really enjoyed eating would disagree with me," says Mrs. J. T. Walls, 23 Henrietta St., Asheville, N. C. "I would suffer from indigestion, gas and heartburn, until I was half-sick.

"I tried a lot of things for indigestion, some of which relieved the gas temporarily but upset my stomach. I did not get any real help until a friend persuaded me to take some Pape's Diapepsin. Now I eat anything—fried things, cucumbers; foods that used to make me ill. If I feel the least discomfort a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin makes me comfortable in a minute."

When thousands like Mrs. Walls are coming right out in public to praise Pape's Diapepsin, there seems no reason to doubt that it does what is claimed for it to help people who suffer from acid-dyspepsia, and the heartburn, gas, nausea, belching, headaches, dizziness, etc., caused by this common ailment. But those who wish further proof before buying may easily have it. The makers agree to send anyone a trial package absolutely FREE. Just write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va.

P. O. SITE VERDICT EXPECTED TODAY

A condemnation verdict tendering practically all of the Hunter-Spring-Forsyth-Mitchell block to the government for the site of Atlanta's new postoffice is expected to be returned in federal district court here today. The proceedings got under way Wednesday before Judge William H. Barrett, of Augusta, sitting here because of the vacancy on the court.

The government closed its case after offering only one witness, James H. Taylor, a real estate man. Taylor testified that he had represented some of the property owners in the negotiations and that he believed the $860,000 offered by the government was an adequate sum for the site.

Only one company involved has taken issue with the government, the Walker Supply Company, claiming that it will sustain a loss of $20,000 through cancellation of its lease.

All of the property to be included in the site is involved with the exception of that held by the Pike heirs, which is to be condemned in a special proceeding.

fore February 1 and for fulfillment of contracts entered into prior to February 1.

County school superintendents who met with the house education committee Wednesday adopted a resolution urging the general assembly to make arrangements for immediate and full payment of the unpaid appropriations at the earliest date possible, "since the county and city boards have been paying interest on these items to local banks at a rate of from 6 to 10 per cent a year."

The resolution was turned over to the education committee for introduction in the house. Representative J. S. Davis, of Floyd, chairman, said the committee will meet within the next few days to consider the matter. W. C. Rozar, Dodge county school superintendent and chairman of the meeting, said "the superintendents are here to stay until we get relief for the schools, and there are more on the way to Atlanta."

BETTER BUSINESS BODY STARTS JOB HUNTING

Job hunting on a wholesale scale has been undertaken by the mayor's Better Business Committee, according to a statement Wednesday evening outlining its plans and difficulties. The task of finding work for more than 14,000 men and women out of employment in Atlanta has grown to such proportions, the statement said, that the help of every citizen is asked.

"Jobs, not charity, is the need of these neighbors of ours," said the statement from the office of Ben S. Read, acting chairman of the committee in the absence of Frank H. Neely.

In Georgia's Legislative Halls

T. Guy Woolford, president of the Georgia Forestry Association and chairman of the state canal commission, will report Tuesday night at a dinner in the Ansley hotel on progress made in the plans to connect St. Mary's river, emptying into the Atlantic, with the Suwanee river, emptying into the Gulf of Mexico. Members of the house conservation committee, Governor-elect Richard B. Russell, Jr., speaker of the house, and a number of senators have been invited to attend the dinner to be given by the forestry association. The canal commission was created at the last session of the legislature by a bill introduced by Representative Bonnell H. Stone, of Union county, who said Wednesday that Howard Coffin, member of the commission, recently conferred with President Hoover on the project.

Attorney-General George Napier will report to the legislature today, in response to a house resolution, that he finds authority in the 1913 acts, creating the department of revenue, where tax collectors are authorized to charge 10 per cent of delinquent taxes for collection.

The bill taxing powdered milk was reported favorably Wednesday by the senate agricultural committee. It has passed the house.

Senator-elect Beull Stark, of the forty-third; Senator-elect John P. Wilhoit, of the nineteenth; Wade H. Watson, of Baxter; J. W. Weaver, of Gilmer county; Representative-elect W. G. McRae, of Fulton county, and Mrs. H. G. Rawls and Mrs. J. M. Cook, wives of senators, Wednesday were given the privileges of the floor.

Robert F. Maddox Re-elected Head of State Health Board

Successful Year for Body and Its Institutions Shown in Annual Report of President.

Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the executive committee of the First National Bank of Atlanta, Wednesday was re-elected president of the state board of health for two years, and Dr. J. H. McDuffie, of Columbus, was re-elected vice president. The annual meeting of the board was held at the Piedmont hotel.

"The state board of health has by careful management been able to operate within the funds received from the state, without contracting any debts, as we believe the responsibility of financing the various departments of the state should rest upon the legislature, whose duty it is to provide funds to meet the appropriations," said Mr. Maddox. "The state board of health is one department in the state which has not spent or contracted to spend more money than it annually receives, and it is conducted on a splendid business-like basis."

Mr. Maddox pointed out that there is still due on appropriations to Alto and the mental defective school $129,435.05, and that these institutions necessarily have had to curtail operations and are unable to render the service expected.

The report of Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, commissioner of health, showed that the Georgia death rate showed a decrease of 1.6 per cent, or 0.2 per 1,000 population, from the 1929 rate, and the birth rate increased 0.2 per 1,000 population. However, Dr. Abercrombie said, the death rate over a period of 11 years has had an average annual increase of 0.1 per 1,000 population and the birth rate during the same period has had an average annual decrease of 0.3 per 1,000 population, so that the rate of decrease in births will meet the rate of increase in deaths within 61 years and Georgia will become stationary, if she depends upon the excess of births over deaths to supply increases in population.

Heart disease ranked first in the cause of death during 1930, with nephritis, cerebral hemorrhage, pneumonia and tuberculosis following in order. The greatest decrease was in smallpox, which, for the first time in many years, failed to cause a single death, and the greatest increase was in measles.

There were 544 homicides during the year, an increase over the 523 reported in 1929. Suicides amounted to 281 in 1930, a decrease of 2.1 per cent from 1929.

Communicable diseases reported in 1930 amounted to 29,161, as compared with 52,084 in 1929. Laboratory examinations showed a great increase in rabies, with a rise of 67 per cent in anti-rabic treatment. Pellegra and diphtheria decreased, due to activity in actual prevention as well as educational measures. There were 244 less deaths from malaria in 1930 than in 1929.

EAGER APPETITE, SOUND, NATURAL SLEEP AT NIGHT

That's Sargon's Gift to the Weak and Weary—Thousands of Cases Have Proved Its Powers.

"The Sargon treatment not only restored my health and strength, but since taking this wonderful medicine I've gained nine pounds of much needed weight," recently stated Mrs. J. A. Hornsby, 412 Cheney St., East

MRS. J. A. HORNSBY.

"For two years I had no appetite and I just had to force myself to eat at all. I never knew what it was to enjoy a night of restful sleep and I was so 'let-down' and weak that my nerves went all to pieces. I lost weight until I only weighed 105 pounds.

"I'd hardly finished my second bottle of Sargon before my appetite returned and I began to gain strength. Since taking three bottles I feel like my old self again. My nerves are steady and I sleep like a tired child. I now weigh 114 pounds and I'm stronger than in years.

"Sargon Pills are the first laxative I've ever taken that didn't upset my system and make me sick. They overcame my constipation without any bad after effects. Several of my friends are also taking Sargon with wonderful results."

ing to him to direct the department. Nothing further was done.

Paul was fired for being in a room at a downtown hotel on the night of January 11 when bandits raided a dice game, and took cash estimated at $3,000. There was no testimony, however, that any gaming was done while Paul was in the room. The defendant claimed he was looking for a kinsman, who, he was told, was in the room.

Smith was ousted because he was charged with having attacked Bill Simpson, a prisoner, in making a traffic violation arrest on December 2; while Etheridge and Buice were fired on charges of being drunk. Patterson and Moss were charged with "taking care" of Etheridge and Buice instead of reporting them, and drew the suspensions.

Key's intention to name a committee to clean up the department seems to be well on the way to realization through the activities of the new committee. Violators of rules and departmental discipline in the future will find a stern set of judges in the five members of the board.

CAROLINA WOMAN WINS COTTON PRIZE

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—A woman, trained for a career as a nurse and left with a farm and two children on her hands when her husband died nine years ago, today was awarded the prize for the best five-acre field of cotton in South Carolina.

Looking more like a prominent member of the Woman's Club than a woman farmer, Mrs. C. H. Mathis, of Blackville, arose today at a banquet here to receive a check for $750—her winnings in the contest with 943 others.

The yield on her fertile five acres was 5,250 pounds of lint cotton of one-inch staple.

"I didn't know a thing about farming when I started," she said. "But I had the farm and I had to do something."

As an indication that she has kept the wolf from the door, Mrs. Mathis points to the two girls she has "raised," who now are juniors at Agnes Scott college at Decatur, Ga.

Al Smith Declares He Feels Sorry For Hoover, 'Holding Bag' at Capital

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The man who failed to get to the White House in 1928 feels sorry for its present occupant.

Alfred E. Smith told the Advertising Club of New York today, "I feel sorry for the president. He sits on top of Capitol Hill holding the bag."

This expression of sympathy came after a discussion of the Wickersham report and the eighteenth amendment in which the former governor declared he felt certain the eighteenth amendment would be defeated if it should come up for ratification at present.

"During the war," he said, "America disregarded its constitution, setting up an unequal dictatorship in its place. We had regulations as to consumption of gasoline, of sugar and of meat, and we did everything we were told to do in line with patriotism.

"After the war a lot of well-thinking people thought that we could try anything which seemed good, and the eighteenth amendment was enacted. We later came to the conclusion that this was not the way to do it. Should anybody try to ratify such an amendment now it would fail, I am sure."

On the Wickersham commission's report, he said it "did one good thing. It was at least unanimous in finding that the thing is not right."

Mr. Smith defended the doctrine of states' rights, asserting that no one wants to make Kansas wet when Kansas "want to be dry, even if it's only on the surface; but they have no right to tell us to be dry."

Clear Skies Are Forecast Here Today

Clearing skies and continued moderate temperature are on the weather program for today, C. F. von Herrmann, government meteorologist, said Wednesday after a forenoon of cloudiness proved a false alarm and no rain fell.

The skies will be slightly clouded today but it will be generally fair, the forecaster said.

Today's temperatures are expected to range between 46 and 60, as compared with a range of 47 and 59 recorded Wednesday.

'Jim' White, Popular Deputy and Prisoners' Friend, Dies

James E. "Jim" White, widely known Fulton county deputy sheriff, who died Wednesday, is shown above at the wheel of the battered auto which was almost as familiar a sight around the courthouse as the popular officer himself. The picture was taken shortly before Mr. White was stricken ill two months ago.

Deputy Sheriff James E. White, one of the most widely known employes of the county, died shortly after 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Georgia Baptist hospital, following an illness of two months.

Mr. White entered the hospital early in December to undergo a major operation. Immediately after the first operation it was said that he could not live two days but he rallied and managed to survive two similar operations, the last of which he underwent two weeks ago.

Early this week hope for Mr. White's recovery was abandoned and out-of-town relatives called to his bedside. He passed into a coma early Wednesday morning and passed away in the afternoon without regaining consciousness.

"Jim" White was keeper and friend to many of the county's most noted and most publicized criminals, and was famed for an old and battered automobile which even Jim admitted was ready for the junk heap years ago but which has outlived him, for two months ago, when he was at the courthouse for the last time, he drove to his home on Stewart avenue in the old car.

It was "Jim's" job to bring the prisoners to the courthouse from the tower when they were to go on trial and to carry them back to jail when the trial was ended, unless they won an acquittal.

Jim used to tell them all when he bundled them into the auto to make a wish, that many a man who rode in it had wished for freedom and had got it, but many had ridden in it both ways—to the courthouse filled with prayers and hope and back to jail filled with tears and hopelessness.

Mr. White's sunny disposition and his kind manner won him many friends among the prisoners and among the spectators who went to the courthouse to watch the progress of the trials to which he was assigned. In busy seasons, when important cases were on the calendar, Jim did his best to see that everyone who fought his way into the courtroom got a seat and when the seats were gone he lined the spectators against the walls and seated them on the widow sills.

Mr. White had been a deputy under Sheriff James I. Lowry ever since Mr. Lowry took office in 1915. Prior to that time he was a machinist for the Southern railway and a fast friend of Captain Lowry, who named him a deputy the day he was elected sheriff.

Funeral Rites Friday.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Stewart Avenue Methodist church by the Rev. Wills Jones. Place of interment will be announced by Harry G. Poole, funeral director in charge. Capitol View Lodge No. 640, F. & A. M., will have charge of services at the graveside, and members of the sheriff's staff will form an honorary escort.

The following will serve as pallbearers: W. G. Smith, J. F. Schilling, J. S. Milam, R. C. McCall, T. Frank Callaway, and O. S. Tony.

Mr. White is survived by his widow; four sons, J. Gilbert, Edmund, Lowry and Bobby White, a daughter, Miss Kathryn White; five brothers, W. A., V. M., A. A. and J. P. White, of Jackson, and C. S. White, of Atlanta, and three sisters, Mrs. F. C. Maddox, of Flovilla; Mrs. W. M. Mayo, and Mrs. J. A. Spurlin, both of Atlanta.

Col. Bob Humber, Native Georgian, Commands Base

Colonel Robert C. Humber, United States army, who is well known in Atlanta, having been stationed here at the time of the training camp at Fort McPherson incident to the World War, has been assigned as commander of the United States army base, South Brooklyn, N. Y. This is the principal peace-time supply depot of the army on the Atlantic coast.

Colonel Humber is a native of Putnam county, Georgia, being the son of the late Robert C. Humber, who in reconstruction days was a tower of strength in the movement to restore the state to white control, and who for a decade afterward played a prominent part of the legislative service of the state.

Colonel Humber has had long experience in the army, serving with distinction in the Spanish-American War, and later in the World War. He has served in different parts of the world with Uncle Sam's army.

During his detail at Fort McPherson in 1917, Colonel Humber made many warm friends in Atlanta.

NAVY AVIATOR CUTS PENSACOLA POWER

PENSACOLA, Fla., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The city's electric power was cut off for a short time today when a navy pilot misjudged his altitude and crashed through high tension wires in making precision landing trials on a short field here.

J. M. Raboniz, aviation machinists' mate and pilot, escaped uninjured, although the landing gear was torn away. The plane landed rightside up.

Power to the city was restored half an hour later.

This Clinic is Real

DR. R. V. PIERCE organized this Clinic in Buffalo in the '70's' and at the same time he put up a vegetable tonic in ready-to-use form which he had prescribed in thousands of cases with wonderful results—this he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the safest tonic for delicate systems because it is made of roots and barks without alcohol.

A strong, healthy body depends upon the right number of rich, red blood cells. It is dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal. If you tire easily, lack pep, if your skin is not clear, if your appetite is poor—you owe it to yourself to try this tonic of Dr. Pierce's. Your appetite will then pick up, your whole body will feel the invigorating effect, you will have redder blood, and gain in vim, vigor and vitality. Ask your druggist for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

One who has tried this famous medicine said:

"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the tonic that restored every member of my family to health during the influenza epidemic several years ago. The beneficial effect on the blood is noticeable at once when taking the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I am relying upon it at the present time and would recommend it to all who have become debilitated and weakened thru colds or an attack of 'flu.'—Mrs. J. D. Davis, 422 Lincoln St., Waycross, Ga.

Make system alkaline to ... Stop Colds QUICK!

Get Rid of Colds Before They Weaken You, Make You Liable to More Serious Troubles.

Nowadays it's important to stop your cold quick before it weakens your resistance to more serious trouble.

Any of the older treatments will bring relief—after a time. But thousands say this new way is the quickest of any.

Begin when you feel a cold coming. Take a tablespoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water, morning, noon, and night, the first day. Do same the second day. Then only at night. Colds reduce the alkaline balance of your system. That makes you feel achy, feverish, weak. Phillips Milk of Magnesia relieves this, and restores the alkaline balance.

Doctors prescribe Phillips Milk of Magnesia; hospitals use it. Millions know how it relieves sour stomachs, gas, indigestion, constipation and other symptoms of too much acid. Get the genuine.

THREE SCHOOL FISCAL PLANS ARE SUGGESTED

Presaging a tedious job for the newly appointed school commission charged with the responsibility of evolving a fiscal plan to make Atlanta schools financially independent of council or any other body, several measures had been suggested Wednesday for consideration of that body when it meets at 10 o'clock Monday morning on call of Mayor James L. Key.

Among the proposals already advanced were the following:

1. Increase of the borough tax rate from $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation of tax property to $2, giving the schools $1 of the amount thus collected. This was suggested by Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, member of the commission, and would become effective only after a favorable referendum.

2. Merger of school systems of the various boroughs of Atlanta, a measure advocated by Councilman J. Frank Beck. Mayor Key declared Wednesday he would oppose any such scheme except by mutual consent of the systems affected.

3. Abolition of the present board of education and appointment by the mayor of Atlanta of a special commission of five members, who would operate the system for the borough. Finances to be supplied as needed with the 26 per cent minimum as now provided for in the borough charter eliminated. Schools would then be given what they need as other departments are from the borough coffers and still would be dependent financially on council.

In advancing his proposal Gilliam declared the time has arrived when Atlantans must choose between maintaining the present standard of education or a retrenchment policy.

MEXICO PLANNING TO ABANDON NAVY

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Virtual abandonment of the Mexican navy probably will be one of the results of a request today by the treasury department for a cut of $22,500,000 in the federal budget for the current year.

The request bears the approval of President Ortiz Rubio.

NIGHT CLUB OPERATOR VICTIM OF STABBER

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Slashed and stabbed in 20 places, Joseph Wallico, a former night club operator, was brought to a hospital today in a critical condition.

Wallico, also known as Wallick, told police he was attacked from behind at Central Park West and Seventy-first street. He said he could not identify his assailant.

What Is Gum-Dipping?

Gum-Dipping

is the Firestone trade name for that patented, basic process which makes Firestone Tires fundamentally different from all other tires. It is one of the reasons why Firestone, through many years, has easily been able to make good the statement: "Most miles per dollar." It is not something done to a tire after it is made. It is something very vital done before the tire is made.

To grasp the full significance of Gum-Dipping, it is necessary to know something about how a tire is made and what goes on within a tire on the road. The body of the tire bears the principal strains in service. To it is attached the tread which provides traction and takes the wear of the road.

The usual tire body is built up of layers or plies of cotton cords between which rubber has been forced. Rubber is incompressible. Hence the tire body practically does not expand or contract to meet road shocks. It flexes—that is, it changes form.

The strain of the flexing tends to pull the plies apart and also to pull the cords themselves apart. A tire flexes about seven hundred times in a mile—which gives some idea of the strains and the friction which a tire must endure.

The great enemy to tire life is internal friction. Years ago the fabric was square-woven—and the cotton cords sawed, one across another.

If cotton rubs against cotton, the tire soon heats up and collapses. That is why the square-woven fabric tires were so short-lived. Then came the tires with parallel cords that could not saw each other. The best square-woven fabric tire would go scarcely four thousand miles. A poor cord tire will give at least twice that mileage. Making the cords parallel was a great advance—but it was only part of the battle against internal friction.

It was realized that if the fibers of cotton in a cord could be insulated one from another, then a step-up in tire life could be had comparable to that made by shifting from square-woven fabric to parallel cords. That is what all tire makers have been striving for. That is what Firestone has achieved.

Every cord

used in Firestone Tires has been treated with a rubber solution which penetrates every cord and coats every fiber; and thus not only the cords, but also the very fibers within them are insulated.

Eight pounds of fine, pure rubber are, by the patented Gum-Dipping process, integrated into every one hundred pounds of cotton cords. This means three extra pounds of pure rubber added to an average set of tires—and added where it means most to the strength and the life of the tire. This extra rubber all goes into the cords of the tire—where you never see it.

Why

does Firestone put in this extra value? And what does it mean to you? It means just this. The performance—the extra value—has been shown for years on the road and in the laboratory. It has been proved that Gum-Dipping:

—increases the flexing life of a cotton cord by 58%.

—increases tire life by from 25% to over 40%, according to the severity of the service—the more severe the service, the higher the percentage.

Firestone

Gum-Dipped Tires are not just tires. They are thirty years of organized experience. They are sold only through Firestone Service Dealers and Service Stores and only as Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires—bearing the Firestone name and bearing the Firestone emblem that appears on this page.

Wherever you live—

city or country—a fresh and complete stock of Firestone products is near-by.

MEETING THE DEFICIT.

Adoption of an act to discount state railroad rentals for the ten-year period between 1936 and 1945 seems sure to be voted by the general assembly. The purpose is to provide funds in part to pay urgent deficiencies of revenue to cover the expenses of the state.

After intensive consideration of the circumstances in which the state finances stand the general assembly faced the sharp-horned dilemma of levying increased and immediate taxes, or anticipating the income from the state-owned and leased railroad. It appears that it will choose the latter way out of the financial muddle and the people who justly resent any increase of taxes will doubtless approve the rental discount.

It is highly unfortunate that uncalculated legislation in past years has produced the large deficits that have resulted, but which must be dealt with wisely, competently and courageously. There is nothing to be gained now by crying over spilt milk. Greater care must be used in the future to repair the loss and guarantee that no more milk will be spilled in like unwise ways.

The people should be thankful that in an emergency like the present they are the owners of an asset that can be made use of through its sure future fruitage to save the life of very necessary beneficent institutions and to negative every suggestion of repudiation of moral and just obligations.

But the lesson of this fiscal emergency should not be lost upon either the people or their legislators.

There is nothing in the business of quite accurately calculating the normal revenues of the state and then adjusting expenses to them that ought to confuse and baffle a body of intelligent and business-minded men. The people should not forget that when they elect a legislator they are commissioning him to vote taxes upon them and to decide how and where those taxes shall be spent.

No tenable reason can be given by any one why such a state of financial troubles should exist in Georgia as now bedevils the state authorities. The people do not demand of their legislators more provisions of service than they are willing to pay for in reasonable forms of taxation. Legislators ought to have the sense and stamina not to appropriate what the state has not in hand and has no prospect of getting.

Furthermore, it should be kept in mind that the rentals of the Western and Atlantic railroad cannot be relied upon to fill repeated gaps in the public revenues. There is a limit beyond which sane financiers will not discount its anticipated long-distance rentals or revenues.

The safe thing from now on is to rigidly keep state expenses within the bounds of the revenues legislated and collectable for the purpose.

SHUT THE GATES CLOSER.

The proposal in congress to reduce immigration by 90 per cent for the next two years commends itself most highly to those who wish to cure, as far as possible, the unemployment conditions in the country.

Organized and unorganized labor are suffering from the overplus of workers, amounting now to near 5,000,000 persons, officially estimated by Colonel Woods, head of the president's emergency committee for employment. That is far and away too many willing workers to be jobless in a nation as rich and as incomplete in public improvements as is the United States.

Many thousands of alien workers already here are fully employed to the exclusion of American citizen workers, many of whom are even veterans of our Spanish-American and World War armies. That condition calls for prompt remedial legislation and the logical thing is the shutting down of our gates of entry to the seekers of work and wages coming from abroad.

While we are voting millions upon millions of public money and appealing to personal sympathy for more voluntary millions to relieve the economic distresses of our people is no time for welcoming into our industries hundreds of thousands of the needy and hungry of the eastern world.

True American sympathy and economy will be wisely served by the immigration reduction bill. It should be promptly enacted and enforced.

HARD ROADS PLEDGED.

To representative farmers of the state gathered in conference at the State College of Agriculture on Monday, Captain Barnett, chairman of the state highway board, made an illuminating and heartening address.

It is his guaranty that with the highway funds in sight for the next few years, left uninterfered with at the disposal of the board, the allocated highway scheme for the state can be built with rapidity and economy. The result will be to put the big majority of the farmers of the state facing an all-year-round surfaced road from his front gate to his most available market.

Just that consummation is the strong reason for the state undertaking the construction of a state-wide system of highways. If Georgia had had such a pervasive hard road system 50 years ago she might well have been today as populous and prosperous as Massachusetts or Ohio.

To get the adopted county seat to county seat system, the main trunk lines across state and the farm to market all-weather, all-season roads, is why the automobile revenues are so largely given to the highway board and why the members of the general assembly resolutely refuse to raid those funds to pay floating debts of the state.

What the people want they registered in the gubernatorial primary. They want the highway board to keep busy on its job until the allocated good roads system is completed.

A WRONG SUGGESTION.

The neighborly Chattanooga Times, commenting upon an editorial in these columns on this state's loss of negro population during the past decade, suggests that the negroes may be leaving to escape the peril of lynching. That is a favorite idea with certain negro agitators in the east and north, but it does not hold substance in either sentiment or fact.

The census shows that negroes have been migrating from states in the south that have had no lynchings and have gone thence into states that have had them. The fact recalls the case of an old Atlanta negro of many years ago who concluded that negroes were not safe from lynching in Georgia and that he would move to Kansas, then regarded as an Eden for negroes. In a few weeks, however, he was back in Atlanta with this explanation:

"I went ter Kansas an' set down in Leavenworth, but, 'fore de Lawd, in lessen a week dey tuck a nigger out er jail an' hung him right in de main street; so I decided dat ef Ize gwine ter be lynched at all, I'd rudder my home fokes 'ud do it dan strangers; so here I iz ergin!"

The known fact is that the negroes who left Georgia were seeking for surer and more profitable work in the industrial centers, and upon railway maintainance and construction work in the north and west. The revised immigration act that shut out the laborers from Europe came contemporaneously with the boll weevil invasion of southern farms. That made it easy and hopeful for the discouraged negro farmer in Georgia and neighbor states to welcome the railway agents from the north and west offering them free transportation and permanent railroad work.

And that is why so many negroes left Georgia.

The "magistrates' falling sickness" seems to be threatening Mayor Jimmie Walker also.

The Chicago lady internal revenue collector seems to have played her money to a faro-well.

The next national campaign will be largely by radio, but loud speakers will continue as a feature.

Turn the old city hall excavation into a swimming-hole and there will be no one trying to squat in it.

Mahatma Gandhi, like many other British subjects, insists upon being among the unemployed.

Big Bill Thompson says he will keep on being Chicago's mayor. Maybe a worse thing could happen to the unlucky burg, but we can't guess it right off.

"Freedom of the seize" is the object of Senator Howell's bone-dry bill for the national capital.

Very soon now the unmuzzled citizens of Cuba will be few enough to count on one's fingers. Down there it is "shut up, or get shut up!"

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

"Red Spears."

The Red Spears, the most powerful of the many secret societies in China, now counts 30,000,000 adherents among the peasants in Honan province, according to Mark M. Lu, who has made a special study of these mysterious organizations. Secret societies are growing steadily in northern China, it is stated, and, owing to continued civil warfare and numerous bandit raids, the people themselves are becoming warlike. All the societies are military in character. The Red Spear movement is an outgrowth of the Boxer movement of 1900. Followers of the Red Spear worship through a religion which is a mixture of the Ten Commandments, based on the Hebrew Decalogue, Buddhist idolatry and Taoist magic. Some of the magic practiced by the leaders includes keeping the lighted wick of a candle inside the mouth for five minutes, and swallowing charms and potions reputed to make them impervious to bullet wounds and sword cuts.

To prove the efficacy of their charms and potions adherents frequently cut themselves with swords and shoot at themselves with pistols. It is claimed that the wounds do not bleed, and although white and purple scars appear, they soon vanish. Before going into battle all the members of the society swallow magic potions and if wounded they appear to be cured by hypnotism.

The Red Spears are divided into many sects which aften war with each other. The leader of one powerful sect is reputed to have a taste for cannibalism, eating the livers of human beings.

Hero Worship.

The public executioner of Czecho-Slovakia, Broumarsky, seems to be replacing the popular film stars as the object of hero-worship among some of the women and girls of his country. Broumarsky declares that after carrying out his first execution he received no fewer than 6,000 offers of marriage. This assertion, he says, he can prove by the original letters, which he has preserved in his rooms. So far, the hangman has accepted none of these proposals, but he continues to be "mobbed" by enthusiastic autograph seekers.

Following the recent execution of a double murderer in a provincial town, the inn where the executioner was staying was surrounded by huge crowds, composed mainly of young women and children, trying to catch a glimpse of the "hero" of the occasion, and to obtain his signature.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

THIS BOY INHALED HIS COCOA.

I though you might be interested, writes a mother, in our experience with our son aged 7 years, who sniffed dry cocoa up his nose and into his eyes. He had all the symptoms you described in your article on Peanut in the Lung. Our doctor said it was bronchial asthma brought on by the cocoa. The doctor gave him ephedrine which worked wonderfully and in three days the son was up.
(M. W. S.)

This is very interesting and I thank the correspondent for her report. We published here not long since the letter of another mother whose child "choked" on a piece of peanut—the peanut "went down the wrong way," and how the parents resorted to artificial respiration when the child became desperate, and while waiting for the doctor. The doctor took the child to the hospital where the peanut was removed. The doctor assured the parents their prompt application of artificial respiration had saved the child's life. The parents had learned how to apply artificial respiration from the teaching of the method in this column.

As a rule the aspiration of a piece of peanut—that is, inhaling it, so that it lodges in the bronchial tube or in the lung—does not bring on immediate distress, but the child merely chokes or coughs a bit and seems all right. A few hours later the child begins to wheeze and cough and suffer increasing difficulty in breathing. It seems the fatty acid in peanut is quite irritating to the delicate tissue of the bronchial tube or the lung and brings on an inflammatory reaction, rather more so than simple foreign bodies which children sometime inhale—such as whistles, buttons, pins.

Ephedrine is a medicine of the alkaloid class, obtained from a Chinese herb. It was introduced to American pharmacology only a few years ago. It has an effect almost identical with that of adrenalin, which is famous for the relief it affords the sufferer from an attack of asthma or hay fever. Ephedrine, like adrenalin (adrenalin is also known as epinephrine and as suprarenaline) is administered either by hypodermic or intramuscular injection, by a very dilute spray in nose or throat, or as a medicine the patient takes by mouth. Neither ephedrine nor adrenalin should be used in any form except under the observation and direction of your physician.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

How We Got Into Trouble by Not Knowing Our State Constitution.

Virtually every state in the Union is suffering today from past neglect to educate its citizens, in their student years, in the principles of their civic institutions and the obligations of intelligent citizenship.

Looking over a long list of bills that have been introduced in the 40-odd legislatures now in session in as many states, a thoughtful person cannot avoid being impressed by the absurdity and the evident demagogy of a large percentage of the proposed acts.

One, indeed, is tempted to paraphrase a familiar couplet and exclaim:

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where fools accumulate, the wise decay!"

Notwithstanding the 5,000,000 federal and state laws now upon American statute books, a few thousand more will be added this spring from the 44 legislative incubators that will have hatched their broods before April Fool Day.

* * * *

The Only Available Remedy.

By the time the next census is taken in 1940 the boys and girls who are now from 12 to 16 years of age, and yet in our schools, and who survive until then, will be full-fledged voters and hold the balance of power in the states and in the nation.

Now is the time, when they are mentally receptive and not sophisticated in partisan politics, to teach them the fundamental principles of popular government, the purpose and processes of legislation and the obligations of civic administration.

The state that neglects to give its youth such education is keeping its doors open to the intrusions of imbecility, fanaticism, public leechery and the appropriation of its powers and treasures by "special interests" and corrupt political oligarchies.

Some states are today languishing in debts and civic anemia because their people do not know enough about government principles to elect sane and safe men to legislate and administer for them.

Consider Our Case in Georgia.

There is scarcely anything connected with current life in Georgia that is less read and understood than the constitution of the state. Many legislators themselves do not read it, as some of them have frankly confessed to me.

That may be the explanation of why so many acts of legislation are appealed to the supreme court of the state and declared "unconstitutional." The list of that dead almost rivals the roster of the state's dead in the World War.

We once enacted a local option prohibition law, giving local units of government the right to vote "for license" or "no license" of liquor saloons. The act was passed because a majority of the people wanted the law and a big majority of the state's counties voted "dry" under it.

But the state constitution does not give power to the general assembly to enact any such option law, whether on the subject of liquor, or fences, or for any other subject matter.

Under like constitutions as ours such option laws have been declared null and void by the supreme courts of many states.

* * * *

The Primary Law, for Example.

Our legislature has enacted a primary law under which nominations are made for federal, state and county offices.

But there is no constitutional warrant for the law, unless the supreme court has arbitrarily amended the constitution in its behalf.

It has been adjudicated common law since this and other states were founded and organized with constitutions that the legislature has no authority to order the people to engage in any election not specifically provided for in the constitution.

Decisions to that effect have overthrown elections in not a few states, and some of those decisions apply in such cases as that of our state primary law.

It is an option law, for no political party is bound to accept it and operate under it.

Enacted without constitutional warrant, and binding upon neither party nor people, it is as void of authority as a cancelled postage stamp.

* * * *

Legislative Bureau Needed.

What we manifestly need in this state is what several states have and others are now moving to establish.

That is, a legislative bureau with the attorney general of the state at its head. It is used to keep track of all decisions of the federal and of the state supreme courts upon questions arising under the Georgia constitution and be prepared to analyze proposed legislation by the general assembly.

On proposed acts it would advise the proper committees of the senate and house concerning the evident constitutionality or unconstitutionality of each mooted measure. In case such measure evidently conflicts with the constitution the bureau would advise the needed changes to bring it within the terms of the constitution.

A Constitution Catechism.

Among the textbooks that ought to be provided and the general use of which is made compulsory in the higher grades of the schools and in the high schools, is an expertly composed "Catechism of the Constitution."

The book should be written in language that youth can readily comprehend and the contents have the approval of the judges of the supreme court, thereby giving it a sanction necessary to its authority.

With the above two provisions made and operating there should soon come a greater respect for the constitution of the state and a surer course of constitutional legislation by the general assembly.

tee Tuesday afternoon by a vote of 36 to 6. The ways and means committee, continuing its work this afternoon, has set as a special order the bill of Representative Harvey Kennedy, of Lamar county, to levy a consumption tax on public utilities.

Representative Edwards' attack on Judge Park, the high spot of the house session, came after he had introduced a resolution describing Judge Park as a "demagogue" and condemning a speech the tax revision association counsel made before the Atlanta Lions Club, in which he was quoted as having said that Georgia "ranked first only in lynchings and copper stills."

Edwards' Speech Applauded.

Edwards spoke on his resolution, under a point of personal privilege, for several minutes, during which time he was frequently applauded by the house, until Speaker Russell invoked the rules to hold his remarks out of order until this morning, when the resolution is due up for consideration. Yielding the floor, the Valdosta member announced that he would resume his castigation this morning and expected to include every division of the state government.

Charges that Judge Park and his law partner drew $18,572.95 from the state banking department, $2,000 from the executive department, $8,250 from the state tax commissioner and $7,500 in fees from the Lutz tax commission were made by Edwards in the resolution.

"He is," Edwards said, "the kingfish of Georgia."

"Every department of the state government," he continued, "is seething with graft. Departments are living in luxury, with lounges and overpaid stenographers. In the governor's office there is even a shower bath and the people would like to know why he can't bathe at the mansion. Why is it that there is a deficit in all state departments except here at the capitol?"

4 New Bills Offered.

Four new bills and three resolutions were offered in the house, which spent the most of its time in jockeying with and finally tabling the bill to provide for a $22,000 printing deficiency bill and in debating, among much parliamentary confusion, a resolution providing for the creation of a commission to consider the purchase of a new state prison farm.

This latter resolution, sponsored by Representative Sloan, of Hall county, was kept before the house by a series of parliamentary moves only after Representative Key, of Jasper county, had begged the house to alter its objectionable features before rejecting it.

Besides carrying an appropriation of $2,000 for the expenses of the commission, the resolution, in its present form, gives the commission authority to purchase a prison farm and to industrialize it.

From Parker, of Colquitt, came a brand-new revenue-raising bill in a proposal to levy a tax on every billboard, sign or other form of outdoor advertising. Dominick, of Pike, offered one to levy a tax on banks and trust companies where any charge is made to depositors for service. The same member offered a second bill to tax electric light and gas companies making service charges.

Tax on Contractors.

Slater, of Bryan, and Mooty, of Troup, offered a new bill to tax contractors who receive contracts for road construction, this varying slightly from the one tabled by a vote of 69 to 68 the day before.

The resolutions, other than the Edwards resolution, were one by Putnam, of Wall, to provide a sub-committee of the penitentiary committee to inquire into the advisability of industrializing the state prison farm, and another by Dominick, of Pike, to require county tax collectors to pay over to state funds back taxes collected.

ORVILLE A. PARK DENIES GETTING $28,000 IN FEES

Asserting that he "gladly" will welcome any investigation by the legislature into any fees paid by the state to either him or the law firm with which he is associated, Orville A. Park, Macon attorney, Wednesday denied that he or his partners had received $28,000 for services rendered as charged in a resolution prepared for introduction in the house by Representative H. B. Edwards, of Lowndes.

"I will gladly co-operate with any inquiry by the house and senate," the Macon lawyer, who is special counsel for the Georgia Tax Revision Association, said. "The total cited by Mr. Edwards in his resolution is grossly exaggerated."

Admitting that he and his legal associates had served as special counsel for various departments of the state, Mr. Park said that the total received for his services as individual counsel or that paid his firm would not nearly approach the sum mentioned by Mr. Edwards in the latter's verbal assault delivered in the house Wednesday.

Charge Termed "Ridiculous."

"I understand," Mr. Park said, "that Mr. Edwards charges that $7,500 was paid to me by the state of Georgia for the work of the Lutz tax survey. That is ridiculous in itself. Dr. Lutz was employed directly by the governor, and the state never paid either him or anybody else any money in connection with the survey, its printing or distribution. On the contrary, the Georgia Tax Revision Association paid $7,500 directly out of its own resources for the survey, bore all the expenses of its preparation and dissemination."

The Macon attorney pointed to the report of the state auditor showing that he had been personally paid a fee of $2,000 for representing the state tax commission in an income tax litigation.

"The was one of the most important cases the state has ever been involved in," he said, "and resulted in a verdict upholding the constitutionality of the law. I received a fee of $2,000, which was far below that which ordinarily could be expected by any counsel in such a case. I understand the other side paid counsel $10,000 for representation, and they lost."

"Villification" Denied.

Mr. Park vigorously denied the charge of the Lowndes representative that he had received money from the state and had then "villified" the commonwealth in public speeches.

"I have never villified the state of Georgia," he said. "The only thing I have done is to speak frankly about things that citizens of Georgia have a right to know. Mr. Edwards quotes me as saying that Georgia stood first only in moonshiners and lynchings. That is a gross misinterpretation. What I did say in my talk before the Lions Club here recently was that Georgia ranked last in everything pertaining to public service for her citizens. During that talk I pointed out that the state stood first in the number of lynchings and first in the number of stills seized, and ranked near the bottom in expenditures for education and other beneficent measures for its people."

The Macon attorney said he hardly knew the Lowndes county representative, and did not understand the reason for the personal references made against himself in the house. He would not comment on personalities contained in the speech of Mr. Edwards, nor would he refer to the charges of "luxury and extravagance" that the Lowndes legislator said existed in the capitol building.

made an unsworn statement to the jury in which he admitted being with the girl on the night of September 1, the last time she was seen alive.

"I drove her to Roswell and then to her home," Swanson said. "When I left her at the house another car drove up just as I was leaving. I did not see her again. The next day, after I had spent the night at home they were accusing me of having something to do with her death. When I left her she had just finished telling me of taking poison and of being treated for it at Grady hospital and she threatened that the next time she would not need treatment."

Swanson admitted that he, too, had taken poison but declared that he had done so because of ill health and that his attempt on his own life had no connection with the girl or her death.

The defense put a number of character witnesses on the stand, including Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of the superior court, and Sheriff T. M. Saunders, of Cobb county.

A moderately filled courtroom heard the defendant's statements and the closing arguments.

The Lordly Palm Can Live Nowhere Except Where Nature Developed It

By Robert Quillen

Nothing in this world endures except the work of nature.

In the ancient lands that cradled civilization, a mound of earth and sand marks the site of a long-dead city. Diggers expose the broken walls of temples and dwellings used by men two thousand years ago, and wonder what catastrophe overwhelmed a city so great and proud. But this is not the end. Beneath the ruins of the buried city the diggers find another, and beneath that a third, each in its turn buried and forgotten before the newer city rose above it.

Each civilization thought itself a fixture and its temples everlasting, but they were artificial things and nature turned them to dust again.

In the jungles of Asia and of Central America are the ruins of long-forgotten cities, unknown and unseen by modern men until a new pathway was found through the air. Ages ago men cleared away the jungle, built their cities of stone, paved highways, held their heads high because of the property they owned. Then the men died and the jungle crept back to reclaim the little space taken from it. "The lion and the lizard keep the courts where Jamshyd gloried and drank deep."

Patient men, selecting parent stock with infinite care generation after generation, develop a superior breed of cattle or poultry or swine; but their methods are artificial and nature undoes their work when their backs are turned.

The goldfish, developed artificially in pools and bowls, loses its glory when returned to running water and becomes again an unlovely carp. Nature will not preserve a type unless she develops it herself.

Consider now the ways of men.

Untold centuries before the beginning of recorded history, when men learned by the slow and painful process of trial and error, hard experience began to build the racial store of wisdom.

It was nature's way—a patient business of trying new ideas, discarding the follies that resulted in bedlam, and preserving the customs and standards that were wise.

Are you alarmed when this generation tries to remake mankind—to equalize the sexes, to relieve children of discipline, to rob marriage of its sanctity, to destroy religion?

You need not fear. The customs and fads of a year or a generation are not natural growths. They are artificial mushrooms. They are man's work.

And the only ways that can endure are the ways developed by nature—the old ways tried and proved by the wisdom of the ages.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 28.—(NANA)—Jesse Lasky evidently believes in getting them young, telling them nothing and when they get to be forty changing them for a couple of twenties.

Coincident with his loss of Ruth Chatterton as a star comes his announcement this morning that he will launch a new star—18-year-old Carmen Barnes, author of "School Girl" and for some six weeks a member of Paramount's writing staff.

Carmen Barnes is the third favorite Jesse Lasky has chosen during the past two years. Maurice Chevalier proved to be a knockout. He captured the fancy of America from the very first song he sang—the very first glimpse of his Gallic gaiety.

Marlene Dietrich was the second Lasky choice. With her initial flash on the screen, audiences recognized her as a star of the first magnitude of Garbo, of Negri, of Swanson and the other stars of the past.

The new star, although only 18, already has a name as an author, sculptor, playwright and musician. She has written tales of the younger set. One of these, "Schoolgirl," had a Broadway premiere.

From Tennessee, she has all the languorous beauty of the southern type. A lyric oval face with great dark eyes, wide-set and dewy with youth. Her slender mobile mouth, brows as lovely as a bird's wing, and magnolia skin, she is a nymph to create fantasy for the eye before the cameras rather than for the mind, through the medium of the typewriter.

And since the quintessence of acting ability seems to be the possession of a brain, plus those traits of personality and beauty that are needed for the screen, Jesse Lasky's new choice bids fair to be a nine days' wonder in cinema circles.

which he would be entitled if not domiciled.

BONUS CASH PROSPECT BRINGS BOND SALES

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Extensive liquidation of United States government securities by large banks was reported by dealers today and was ascribed in some quarters to fear on the part of the institutions that a huge bond issue would be necessary if congress decides to redeem veterans' insurance certificates at this time.

Sale by the financial institutions of a portion of their holdings which have been steadily augmented in recent weeks signalizes an unexpected change of trend and has been sharply reflected in prices.

Long term treasury issues have declined $2.50 to $7.50 in the last three days due to the liquidation, and there have been smaller recessions in Liberty bonds which are selling near the peak price for recent years.

himself with difficulty four feet from the falls.

Gordy, a poor swimmer, waded on the top of the dam for 30 feet and tossed a tire to which was attached a cord. The tire fell out of reach of Frosolono. Gordy turned to retrieve the tire, lost his footing and went over the dam. He was drowned. A rope later was thrown to Frosolono, who was drawn to safety.

Miss Smith narrowly averted drowning while attempting to save E. Frances Wilbanks, 18, from a similar fate at Powder Springs, Ga., July 1, 1929. Although pushed beneath the surface, she freed herself and swam feebly to wadable water, there to be helped to the lake bank. Miss Wilbanks was saved by another girl.

West, a railroad yard clerk, saved Everett Haney, 8, and George Medley, 8, from being bitten by a rabid dog at Atlanta, April 18, 1929.

The dog ran along a street toward a school. When within 10 feet of the boys, the dog was kicked by West, fell, but got to its feet and turned toward the man. West ran away a few feet, was overtaken by the dog, which snapped at West's trousers, and the man fell. The dog leaped upon him and bit him on the head. A man threw a stone which struck the dog and it ran away, later to be shot and killed.

West was given treatment for the prevention of rabies and suffered no ill effects.

ens remarked, "that the amount by which we have retired the public debt in excess of what was required is just equal to what we now want to give our soldiers."

"Yes," Mellon replied, "but the country was in a better condition to pay that amount then than it is now. It was entirely different from going out now for fresh capital."

"To put it another way," Mills interjected, "it is now proposed to wipe out the benefits of sound financing by the treasury over the last 10 years."

Mellon denied Harrison's assertion the people had been overtaxed.

"These rates were not reduced enough," Harrison said, "because of the untrue estimates of the treasury."

Best Estimates.

"They were the best estimates that humans could make," the secretary replied.

In his prepared statement, Mellon said the legislation would "seriously retard business recovery, and so prolong unemployment."

"I can say without qualification," he declared, "that the treasury department could not sell $3,400,000,000 of bonds at the present time except on terms which it would be very hard to justify and without complete disorganization of the government and other security markets, with the most serious consequences not only to the public credit but to our entire economic structure."

He recited a number of "indirect consequences" which he said would be "even more serious," including depreciation of the price of all United States bonds; destruction of capital values running into hundreds of millions of dollars; death of the bond market for other kinds of securities; and destruction of the market for foreign securities.

Veterans Administrator Hines today recommended a $2,850,000 construction program at national soldiers' homes.

Hines also submitted to Chairman James of the house military committee a request for legislation to fix the allowance paid veterans while in a home at half the compensation to pulled out and head down the right-of-way, back toward Thomasville.

Deputy Sheriff White, searching along the right of way just north of the Merrillville station, said he found a pistol, believed to be the bandit's. It was lying a few feet from the rails and may have been lost by the robber as he jumped from the train, White said.

Both White and Davis said they were convinced that Prather engaged in a severe tussle with the bandit.

"From the appearance of the mail car it seems certain that there was quite a struggle on board," the sheriff said. "Just how long the bandit was on the train no one seems to know."

At Thomasville, Mrs. Rozenbery, the postmistress, began a hurried check of her office in an attempt to learn just how much loot was in the registered pouch. She said she would not be able to give out any figures today.

In the Moultrie hospital, young Prather was questioned by Dr. A. B. Daniels, A., B. & C. physician, who treated his wounds.

"Prather is certain the bandit boarded the train at Merrillville," the doctor said over long distanct telephone tonight. "He also is sure that the robber knew just where the registered mail is kept because he went about his business so swiftly and accomplished the holdup in such a short time."

MELL PRATHER LIVES WITH BROTHER HERE

Mell T. Prather is a brother of Foster Prather, 450 Sterling street, N. E., with whom he makes his home. Foster Prather said Wednesday night that his younger brother is a substitute clerk and has been in the railway mail service more than two years. He previously served two years as a clerk in the Atlanta postoffice.

Foster Prather said Wednesday night that he and Mrs. Prather would go to Moultrie today to be with his brother.

Immediately on learning of the robbery railway and postoffice department officials here began a check on the loss and an investigation of the entire affair. They said no announcement would be made until detailed reports were received from Fitzgerald, the division in which the robbery occurred.

Democrats Survey Nation To Devise Deficit Plans

National Committee Moves To Remove "Ownership" Onus From Chairman Raskob.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Moving to save the party any embarrassment arising from criticism in some quarters that Chairman J. Raskob has advanced large sums in the past for campaign outlays, the democratic national committee was revealed today to have initiated a survey for the purpose of determining whether the time is opportune for launching a nation-wide campaign to raise funds for paying off the party's deficit.

The survey is being made by the New York firm of John Price Jones, one of the national organizations which undertake to raise funds for churches, community chests, hospitals and other movements of the kind. It was ordered by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the national democratic organization, after having been previously recommended by Chairman Raskob himself.

The manner in which Mr. Raskob approaches the subject is typical of his method in handling the various political and campaign problems that have been referred to him since taking over the reins of the national committee. Sensing the possibility of someone raising the issue in 1932 that he has constituted the main financial support of the party and as one critic has already asserted, holds a first mortgage on the party machinery, he is taking steps far enough ahead to avoid such criticism a year hence.

In short, through well organized business efforts, he will seek to give the rank and file of the party an opportunity to take over the party's debt, of which $200,000 is owed directly to him and some $400,000 to a New York trust company, with which Mr. Raskob, former Governor Alfred E. Smith and their friends are closely associated.

Democratic leaders here who do not share the criticism that has been directed at the national chairman express no hesitancy in saying that Mr. Raskob's only purpose is to save the party embarrassment. The thought of reimbursing himself of funds due him is entirely secondary.

Realizing the need for an active and vigorous organization at national headquarters to function 12 months in the year, rather than just a few months during national election years, he caused to be set upon his own initiative, it is pointed out, the elaborate party organization which is credited with bringing democratic issues so prominently before the country in preparation for the 1930 congressional elections, which saw democrats miss by a hair-breadth capturing control of both houses.

No publicity has been given to the survey because it does not necessarily follow that the campaign will be conducted. The survey might very well find that the present time is not opportune.

GOVERNOR HUEY LONG CONFINED TO HOME

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Governor Huey P. Long was again confined to his bed today as a result of subnormal temperature in the wake of his recent attack of influenza. The governor was described as "feeling tired and depressed" and has been advised to conserve his strength until he feels completely recovered.

Early this week, he was able to appear as a witness in an interstate commerce commission rail trackage hearing here, but has remained at the mansion since yesterday, when he was forced to conduct state business from his bedroom.

would have thought he was telling of a trip across the Sahara desert.

General D'Esperey Praised.

During the afternoon he took us to visit the headquarters of one of the attacking divisions, the twenty-seventh, and after its infantry had penetrated the main German defenses we went by automobile to what had been no man's land and thence on foot to the enemy's second position. The artillery and machine gun fire was still frequent over that part of the field, which was strewn with the bodies of many gallant Frenchmen whose courage had made the victory possible.

From the respect shown General d'Esperey as he passed along, speaking cheerfully to the men, frequently addressing them affectionately as "Mes Enfants," there could be no doubt of his popularity. This was my second contact with one of the most picturesque and delightful personalities in the French army.

This achievement of the French in capturing positions against which the April offensive by Nivelle dashed itself to pieces had a very stimulating effect upon their morale, but it would have been more lasting had it not been followed so soon by the series defeat of the Italians at Caporetto, October 24.

After extending thanks to our host we left for Compiegne, literally covered with mud, stopping there to congratulate General Petain on the success of the day. While at Compiegne we dropped in at the dispensary where some American women under Miss Elsie de Wolfe (who afterward became Lady Mendl) maintained a clinic for badly burned gas cases. We also made a brief call at the hospital nearby to see Colonel Bunau-Varila, of Panama Canal fame, who had lost a leg in the recent French offensive near Verdun. From his cheerful mood he seemed to be rather proud of his wound.

In 1927 I took part in the dedication of the Ossuary near Verdun, at which Colonel Bunau-Varila was present. On the rounds to inspect this fine monument we passed the many bays which contain the bones of men who lost their lives in the great battle. When we came to the bay corresponding to the sector in which he fought he jovially remarked that he thought his leg must be in there.

Following closely on the heels of this limited French success came a tremendous counterstroke by the Austrians and Germans against the Italians. During preceding months, beginning in May, the Italian armies had made a series of attacks which at first met with considerable success. The Italians made progress in the Julian Alps, causing Austrian losses of some 30,000 prisoners, but the timely arrival of Austrian reinforcements enabled them to prevent serious dislodgment.

Meanwhile, the situation on the Russian front permitted the withdrawal of troops of the Central Powers to an extent that enabled them to assume the offensive against the Italians. Rather vague rumors came to the ears of the Allies that an attack was impending, but they received little credence, especially from the Italian commander-in-chief, who professed every confidence in the strength of his armies.

The Germans had come to realize that operations with limited objectives involving days of violent preliminary artillery fire were far too costly when measured by results. They had adopted a new system based on a few hours of heavy bombardment, principally with gas shells, followed by a violent assault on the forward positions by picked battalions supported by an unusually heavy concentration of machine guns and other portable weapons. The defense once broken, fresh troops held close in the rear poured through the lines of the leading troops and, increasing the momentum of the attack, rapidly carried the fight beyond the entrenched positions. This plan had already been tested in the battle of Riga, where a complete rupture of opposing fortified lines was accomplished and the fighting successfully carried on in the open.

Bore Out Pershing's Contentions.

The demonstration at Riga by General von Hutier's army was convincing proof of the soundness of the plan and of the correctness of the doctrine of training for open warfare that we were so persistently following in France and so continuously trying to impress upon the war department at home. It simply proved that nothing in the great war had changed this age-old principle of the art of war. Thenceforth this method was to characterize German attacks, and the capture of Riga was the precursor of Caporetto and the series of strokes by the Central Powers later on, which were more or less uniformly successful.

The most delicate phase of the system was the secret concentration close to the front of the large force necessary. This was usually accomplished by a series of night marches, the troops being concealed by day in villages and woods. Under German control and re-enforced by seven picked German divisions, the Austrian forces, following out this plan, completely surprised the Italian army on a 30 kilometer front near Caporetto October 24, during a heavy fog, and succeeded in breaking entirely through their lines on the first morning, rapidly forcing the Italians into the open. The advance crossed the Isonzo river and German troops were over the frontier by the 25th.

The feeble resistance of the Italian second army, which stood the brunt of the attack, has been attributed to well-organized propaganda on the part of the Austrians, who were said to have fraternized with the Italians on the theory that they were brothers, and that if they declined to fight each other the war would end. But the inherent weakness of the Italian position was not overlooked by the Germans. It appears, entirely from Italian sources, that there was an actual gap in the Italian lines between their second and third armies at Tolmin, where the Austrian outposts held a commanding position on the high ground in the interval.

The Italian reserves were insufficient, few defensive positions had been prepared in the rear, the bridges across the Isonzo were inadequate and the supply depots, which were in front of the Tagliamento, were too far forward. At any rate, the third army was left in a critically exposed position from which it barely escaped by a rapid retreat.

Before the operation ended November 10 the enemy had advanced some 60-odd miles and was confronting General Cadorna's men on the Piave. More than 300,000 prisoners, 3,000 pieces of artillery and immense quantities of supplies were captured by the enemy. All the Italian gains in the war were wiped out during the first 36 hours of this battle. Seemingly in an instant the cause of the allies had been dealt a master blow and five British and six French divisions were rushed to Italy to save the situation. This victory tremendously strengthened the hands of the German government.

One gleam of light was revealed in this dilemma and that was that the magnitude of the disaster and its immediate effect on all the allies forced a realization of the necessity of understanding and co-operation. They soon after made a really determined effort to secure unity of command through the Rapallo agreement, though a later disaster still more serious was necessary before this ideal could be finally accomplished, all of which will be discussed later on.

Toward the end of October, accompanied by Generals Richard N. Blatchford and Mason M. Patrick and Colonels Charles R. Krauthoff and David S. Stanley, I visited Bordeaux one of the ports chosen for the use of American troops. As facilities were only sufficient to accommodate a limited amount of additional medium draft shipping, we had started the construction of new docks at Bassens, 12 miles below, where deep water would permit vessels to come alongside. Although considerable quantities of material had been sent over, this new construction was delayed principally because of the lack of pilings which the engineers had planned to have brought from the Pacific coast.

Shavings Instead of Steel.

An incident happened in connection with the shipments of piling from home that would have been amusing if it had not been so serious.

One ship that reached Bordeaux was supposed to be loaded with especially long piling, but upon inspection the engineers found it much shorter than prescribed. Upon inquiry, it was learned that to get the piles in between bulkheads the supercargo had sawed the ends off. While speaking of forest products, another example of inefficiency that occurred a little later might be mentioned.

One of the vessels from home was loaded by the quartermaster's department with shavings for the cold storage plant instead of steel billets for the manufacture of guns, when tons of sawdust and shavings could have been obtained from the logging districts in France.

Continuing the inspection, we went on Sunday to Cornau, about 40 miles from Bordeaux, thinking it might possibly be available for our use later on. It was then occupied by a brigade of disaffected Russians who, like most of their fellows, had defied their officers and refused to participate further in the war. After being withdrawn from the line they had given the French so much trouble, even to committing depredations on the people, that they had to be sent out of the zone of the armies to this rather remote camp, where they were held practically as prisoners.

There was no transportation to carry them back to Russia, and as they had been allowed to keep their arms it was difficult to enforce discipline among them. I spoke to two colonels and criticized the lack of sanitation, but it was evident that they were unable to compel the men to work, even to the extent of cleaning out stables, latrines or drains, and the conditions may better be imagined than described. The men were a heavy, stupid looking lot, who, in their new estate, apparently did not care how bad things were so long as the French continued to feed and clothe them.

Gievres, which lies 100 miles directly south of Paris, became the site of our principal supply depot in France. Under Colonel C. J. Symmonds' able and energetic direction, construction to cover an area of 12 square miles was going forward with all possible speed. Colonel Symmonds was gradually putting order and system into the place.

Regardless of the adverse conditions under which the line of communications was laboring, there was everywhere a fine and enthusiastic spirit among the officers and men, who, without exception, were cheerful and optimistic. After all, considering the lack of men and material, we were making progress on the physical side of the organization that would feed, clothe and furnish munitions for the great army we hoped to have.

One obstacle, however, was to be found in the number of independent bureaus represented at the ports and the larger centers of activity, not only in our own system, but especially in that of the French, and the consequent difficulty of securing team work among them. As a remedy, I sent to each base section a competent general officer with an organized staff to co-ordinate and systematize the management of affairs, and in a brief time considerable improvement was noticeable in methods of handling troop arrivals and cargo and in the increased progress of construction.

Dreary Camp O. K. When Chief Came, Says D. E. Holmes

BY D. E. HOLMES.

The forwarding camp at Le Mans, France, was in terrible shape in February, 1919, when the first combat divisions were preparing to sail. The company of which I was captain was billeted in a hut in the woods. Rain drizzled all day and it froze at night. We had no cooking utensils. Water was carried a mile in salvaged tin cans. A bonfire of stolen wood provided heat. There was not enough floor space to let the whole company lie down at one time. Nearly all were sick. They were in such a frame of mind that fear of losing the chance to go home was all that prevented murder.

General Pershing was to inspect the company. Anything which might start an official inquiry would surely mean months in France. Fortunately we passed inspection. I was introduced to General Pershing and the conversation was like this:

"Are your men comfortably billeted?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is their food good?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are their quarters warm?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are the men in good health?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is their mental attitude good?"

"Yes, sir."

"Very good, captain, that will be all."

The next day we set out for home.

SHORTRIDGE BLOCKS POWER GROUP TEST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The proposal for a court test of the controversy between President Hoover and the senate over three members of the power commission moved forward another step today but final approval was blocked by one of the senate minority opposing the plan.

The resolution to authorize carrying the case to the court was approved by the senate audit and control committee but Senator Shortride, republican, California, prevented its consideration in the senate.

Chairman Deneen submitted the committee's report and asked for its immediate consideration, but Shortridge objected.

His objection sent the resolution to the calendar to await its turn, but a majority of the senate can call it up for action.

GREAT PROSPERITY SEEN BY ABBOTT

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The present depression "is just a momentary pause for mental breathtaking before we plunge into a greater era of progressiveness than the world has ever known," commented Charles F. Abbott, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, while here today as guest of the Louisiana steel interests representatives.

"During the next 10 years we will witness the greatest period of industrial development in all history," he predicted as he outlined present advancement and pictured the American city of the future.

Banks and business houses were closed, but since the suspension of constitutional guarantees decreed by President Machado does not permit public gatherings, the day was not the gala occasion it otherwise would have been.

26th Officers Deny Pershing Hit Unit

BY CHARLES M. O'NEILL.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—(NANA)—No criticism, direct or implied, is made of the twenty-sixth division by General Pershing in the instalment of his memoirs printed in The Constitution recently.

This is the opinion expressed by officers of the twenty-sixth division, who were asked to explain the significance of General Pershing's cable to the war department in October, 1917, wherein he complained:

"Manner in which these regiments came to France does not indicate much improvement over conditions Spanish-American War."

Dr. Frederick E. Jones, Quincy, Mass., who as colonel commanded the 101st sanitary train, comprising all the medical units of the Yankee division, said:

"The medical units of the twenty-sixth arrived in France with all the equipment war department organization orders permitted. For instance, I sailed from Hoboken on a troopship and my horse was transported to Newport News, Va., and went to France on a cattle boat with other horses.

At War Department.

"Obviously General Pershing's criticism of 'the manner in which these regiments came to France' is directed at the war department's method of transportation, with which the division had—and could have—nothing to do.

"Still, I do think that his criticism seems somewhat far-fetched, for it appears to me that men and their personal equipment should go on troopships, and animals and other transport be sent on freighters, as was done."

"Pershing is right," says Lieutenant General Edward L. Logan, Massachusetts national guard, retired. "The method of transportation, when the Yankee division went to France, was hardly better than in the days of the Spanish-American War. Certainly the commander-in-chief has not criticized the Yankee division. His whole complaint is that the war department method of arranging transportation of the American expeditionary forces had not reached any greater efficiency than in '98."

General Logan commanded the 101st infantry regiment of the Yankee division in the war. Of the medical units assigned to his regiment General Logan says:

"These units had all the equipment allowed them by war department orders, and they arrived in France with all that they were permitted, under those orders, to take with them."

Dr. Fred Bogan, Boston, who was major during the war in service with the twenty-sixth commanded a medical unit, says:

"When we left Framingham, Mass., to entrain to the point of embarkation, the medical outfits were equipper to full war strength in men and medical supplies. The supplies went with us to France. The table of organization of the old ninth Massachusetts, which became the 101st infantry of the twenty-sixth was increased in personnel from 900 to a roster of 3,600 men. And supplies and equipment were increased proportionately.

"While we were at Framingham two ambulances were presented to us, one by the women of Framingham and the other by another group. These we did not take to France with us because they were not 'issue.' These were left behind and became the property of the northeastern department, of which we were then a part.

"Of course, General Pershing is not criticizing the division, because it obviously is not within the province of the division to decide the method of transportation. That was up to the war department, to which General Pershing addressed his cable of complaint."

None of these officers had any knowledge of any equipment having been loaded on to transports at Hoboken, and then taken off before sailing time, as General Pershing observed had been reported by some medical officers.

PETTY RACKETEER VICTIM OF BULLETS

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Morris Berkovitz, said by police to have been a petty racketeer, was shot and killed in the Maxwell street district early today. His slayers escaped, presumably in an automobile.

Investigation of Berkovits's record revealed, police said, that he was known as a hi-jacker of silk thieves, and that he and his brother Herman had engaged in a feud with "Pudgy" Stamm in which Herman was killed. Stamm later was captured and sentenced for manslaughter.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Retiring as secretary for Asia of the Y. M. C. A., Dr. Sherwood Eddy announced at a dinner in his honor Tuesday night that he had joined the socialist party and would hence forth work for "economic justice."

"If we do not Christianize the social order," he said, "there are those who will communize it. It is not enough to evangelize the world. We've got to Christianize it."

He further pledged himself to struggle for political and economic reform, recognition of soviet Russia, pacifism, birth control and revitalization of religion.

The dinner was attended by prominent Y. M. C. A. officials in honor of Dr. Eddy's 40 years of service with the organization.

Tech Noses Out Auburn in Closing Minutes of Game, 37 to 33

Columbus Club Will Seek Sally Berth if Southeastern League Fails

JACKETS BEAT AUBURN, 37-33, IN LATE RALLY

Gooding and Phillips Bag Field Goals To Win Game.

AUBURN, Ala., Jan. 28.—(AP)—With the score tied at 33-all in the final minutes of play, Phillips and Gooding, Georgia Tech forwards, caged a field goal each to give the Tech five a 37-33 victory over Auburn here tonight.

Auburn led at the half, 25 to 16, but made only one field goal in the last half as against 10 for Tech.

Gooding and Phillips proved the stars of the game. Besides bagging the two winning goals, the Jacket forwards accounted for 20 of Tech's total points, each getting 10 for their evening's work.

Jordan, Auburn forward, was high scorer of the night with a total of 15 points.

Jordan found the basket for six field goals, in addition to playing a good floor game.

The Jackets showed plenty of good basketball tonight and should be a tough team for the undefeated Georgia Bulldogs when the two teams meet in Atlanta Saturday night.

Boys' High Races For Cake Today

Boys' High students, approximately 300 of them, are expected to participate this afternoon in the annual cake race which starts immediately after school is over for the day.

The race was slated for early in December but due to cold and wet weather it was postponed several times and finally was set for this afternoon.

Every freshman in the school, barring a physical ailment, is requested, required and expected to run the three and one-half mile race. It has been and old custom for every Boys' High freshman to participate in the race or exhibit a suitable certificate, and the upper-classmen will be on hand to "carry on."

Twenty of the cakes have been set aside for the freshmen alone and the remaining 20 will be given to the upper-classmen finishing in order after the winner.

Woodberry Plays Sacred Heart Five

With two victories and no defeats on their record, the Sacred Heart basketball team will play the North Avenue Presbyterian team at 7:30 o'clock Friday night on the Georgia Tech court. Sacred Heart defeated Woodberry Hall, 24 to 12, in a game last week.

Georgia's basketball team, long on scoring power, but short on reserves, faces an engagement this week-end that threatens their lead in the Southern conference race.

The Bulldogs play Georgia Tech here Saturday night. Captain Sandy Sanford scoring ace, may be unable to start.

With Sanford out of commission and "Catfish" Smith, another star, still warming the bench under faculty frowns, the meager Bulldog squad will be hard pressed to win this game. And the spectacular last minute victory Tech won last night at Auburn will make the Jackets tougher than ever.

Of course, it would be no great calamity to the Georgia cause if this game was dropped for, after all, the pre-tournament games are in effect a qualifying round. And Georgia is so far out in front that nothing could keep them out of the first 16. But the old pride in achievement will keep the Bulldogs hustling all the harder minus Sanford and Smith.

The Bulldogs had a game scheduled with Auburn, another tough conference foe, but this was cancelled in order that the Tigers might fill a road engagement with Vanderbilt.

BASEBALL PROSPECTS IN ECLIPSE.

Robert Alva Clay, the Kid himself, is walking around in a daze this week. Examinations are just ahead. And his prospective varsity baseball team is preparing to face faculty fire. Spring is in the air, but instead of hearing the crack of the bat Coach Clay is listening for the scratching of the blue pencil.

HOW COLLEGES PAY DEBTS.

One of the legislators ("solons" to the reporters) has introduced a bill over at the statehouse asking that the affairs of the athletic associations of Georgia Tech and Georgia be investigated. The legislators, or solons, want to know if the huge (?) sums accruing from football games are being expended wisely and if there is any money lying around loose that the state can divert (latch-onto) to other educational purposes.

If and when the legislators, or solons, go into the financial affairs of the two state institutions they will find at least one illuminating fact. The state of the University of Georgia fund for building the new stadium will afford a useful lesson in financing that the better minds of the legislative body will find interesting.

The athletic association borrowed $180,000 in 1928 to build their stadium. This sum was divided into five notes of $36,000 each, due in December of the years 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932 and 1933.

A communication from Dr. S. V. Sanford, faculty chairman of athletics, reveals that three of these notes, totaling $108,000, have been paid. That the note due in the past December was paid is a tribute to the ability of the athletic association executives to circumvent the alleged "hard times."

The University of Georgia athletic association undoubtedly is conducted on sound business principles. It has excellent credit. It is not borrowing from the future to pay past due debts as is the case with some governments.

If the legislators, or solons, seriously study the administration of business of the athletic associations of Georgia and Georgia Tech they may learn useful lessons in making budgets and retiring obligations promptly.

OPENING FOR BRIGHT YOUNG MAN.

When Max Schmeling, the champion boxer, arrived in New York and became the target for questions from reporters, Joe Jacobs, his manager, took him aside and advised him what to say.

Consequently Schmeling's replies were diplomatic and graceful.

It is a pity that General Butler, of the United States marines, has no Joe Jacobs to advise him on his public utterances.

ALL SETTLED.

J. F. Williams kindly advises that Hoyt & Ward's "Famous Quotations" give it "Delenda Est Carthago" and credit the utterance to Cato. Wonder why I did not look into that book in the first place.

NEW SPORT FOR FRANK SPEER.

Pity the defenseless flies this summer.
Frank Speer, the giant Tech tackle, is going after them.
Frank, however, is not using personal contact, nor yet a fly swatter. He is now engaged with the Southern Sanitary Supply Company and is distributing stuff to spray at the pests.

Layton Assured Of Second Place

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., who was dethroned for the first time in three years as world's three-cushion billiard champion last night, assured himself of a tie for second place in the tournament tonight by defeating Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, 50 to 32, in 32 innings.

Fulton To Face Cadet Five Today

With only one game on the slate for this afternoon, there will be a lull before the Friday storm in prep basketball ranks.

Fulton High will play Marist on the Ivy street court at 3 o'clock in the lone game today.

Meanwhile members of the big three and N. G. I. C. as well will take advantage of the last opportunity to prepare for hard games scheduled for Friday afternoon and night, when seven games are booked.

Chief interest in the Friday games will be the Lanier High-Boys' High game at 8 o'clock on the Henry Grady court. It will be an important game in the G. I. A. A. ranks and will be the first of a two-game series in which the Lanier Poets will meet Atlanta opponents. Tech High will pay hosts to the Macon quintet Saturday night on the same court.

The Friday afternoon schedule of the big three will likely be postponed until a future date on account of Lanier High being in town.

BOXING BOUT.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A bill to legalize boxing in Ohio to establish a state athletic commission was authorized in the Ohio senate today.

Broyles, Mangham Join Army of Dodos

Atlanta golfers have taken advantage of the past week of spring-like weather and as a result two hole-in-one shots have been made on the Capital City Country Club course.

Norris Broyles secured a dodo on No. 5, a par 3, 175-yard hole. He was playing with Ed Upton, Jr., "Bubber" McNeel and Howard Beskett, club professional.

A short time later Sam Mangham sank his tee shot on No. 15, a par 3, 155-yard hole. Mangham was playing with C. L. R. Nichols, Robin Adair and "Smack" Garlington.

The five 18-hole courses, Capital City, Druid Hills, Black Rock and two at East Lake, together with Ingleside Country Club, Forrest Hills, Ansley Park, West End, John A. White, James L. Key, Candler Park and Piedmont Park courses, all nine-hole layouts, have reported unusually large crowds in the past week.

MAX SCHMELING EAGER FOR BOUT WITH STRIBLING

German Says Georgian Real Fighter Who Deserves Much Credit.

By Walter Trumbull.

NEW YORK, June 28.—With all the hullabaloo and photographers' flash guns quieted, Max Schmeling tonight turned his thoughts to the coming title fight with W. L. (Young) Stribling, of Georgia, next June.

The big German, looking as fit as a fiddle, sat back in a big easy chair in his hotel room and talked of his next bout. He is eager to get in the ring with the Georgia heavyweight.

Schmeling is impressed with the young Georgian's ring performances in the last year.

"This Stribling seems to be a real fighter. While Sharkey was stalling and howling about this fight and that, this Stribling was taking on all the tough boys in this country. He won all of his bouts with apparent ease and deserves a place at the very top," the champion said.

MAX IMPRESSED.

"I have seen the southerner fight only once but in this fight he knocked out a fighter by the name of Squires and his showing impressed me very much.

"He is a very good fighter. I have a tough fight ahead but I feel I will win," he concluded.

Schmeling needs a lot of real boxing. In Stribling, the German will meet both a boxer and a hitter.

PICKING MAX.

Many are picking Schmeling to win. As nearly as I can discover they are selecting him from two angles. Some pick him because they figure him a tough fellow with a hard right hand punch and they think he will outgame Stribling.

Personally, I never have believed Stribling lacked courage. I think many things concerning the Georgian are explained by the fact that he was brought up a showman rather than as a fighter, and that it is hard for him to get away from the showman's viewpoint: If he puts on a good act, why take any needless chances of getting hurt?

That is not a champion's viewpoint. Dempsey said to me the other evening that no great fighter ever waited around to see what his opponent was going to do. A real fighter comes out of his corner with the idea of getting in range as fast as possible and hitting until somebody drops. And that doesn't mean wild swinging. It means short, powerful, deadly blows which crash to the mark.

Stribling has long had the physical attributes—the speed, power and skill of a champion. He has lacked the mental angle. If Gypsy Daniels could knock Schmeling out under any circumstances, if Paulino Uzcudun, after repeated batterings and with his best arm injured, could stay the limit with him, I cannot see what logical chance he should have with William Lawrence Stribling..

Miami Fighters Train Next Week.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—(UP)—Three of the four principals in Miami's forthcoming heavyweight battles will begin active training here next week, Frank Bruen and "Pa" Stribling, in charge of the men, announced today.

Primo Carnera, Italian giant, and his opponent, Jimmy Maloney, are expected early next week to set up training quarters. Mickey Walker, who meets Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, will start by motor tomorrow from his home in Newark, N. J. Risko has not yet reported his plans but is expected here before February 10.

The principals are under contract to train here for one month before their respective bouts. Maloney and his manager, Dan Carroll, will arrive from Boston Sunday. Carnera and his retinue are due Monday or Tuesday. Walker said he expected to arrive here Sunday or Monday.

Fight headquarters were established in the McAllister hotel arcade today, the same location used by the Madison Square Garden for its bout here last winter.

Walker meets Risko on the night of February 24. The Carnera-Maloney scrap is scheduled for March 5.

VALDOSTA PLAYS.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Jan. 28.—The Valdosta Athletic Association basketball team meets the Moultrie team in this city Thursday night. A previous game between the teams was played in Moultrie, when the Valdosta quintet lost by a small score.

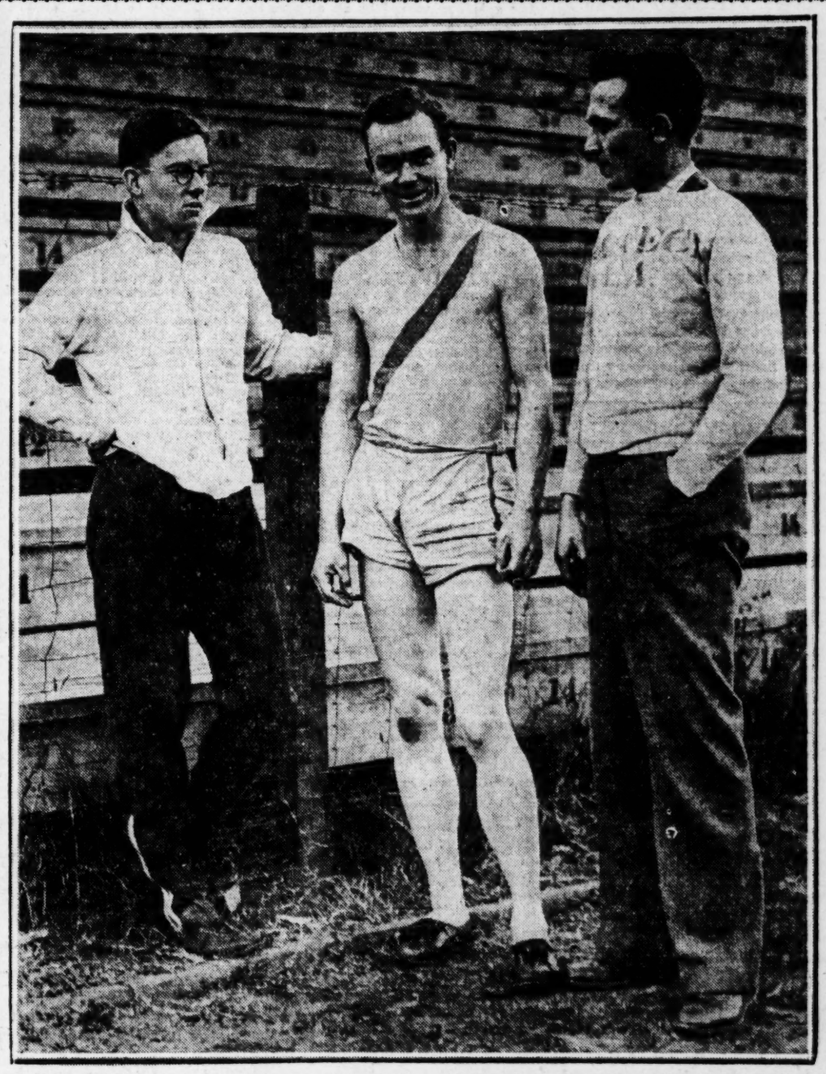

Swat Kings Given Old Arkansas Ash For Big War Clubs

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Slabs cut from an Arkansas ash tree in 1911 and "seasoned" through the intervening 20 years are to be fashioned into war clubs for two of baseball's mightiest sluggers—Babe Ruth and "Memphis Bill" Terry, Giant first baseman and 1930 National league batting champion.

The wood was presented to Terry by Graham Boyd, of Memphis, himself a former ball player, and has been sent to a wood working plant in Louisville, Ky., to be made into bats for the two ball pounders.

Boyd cut the wood while on a visit to his Arkansas plantation back in 1911. He intended to have it shaped into bats for his own use, but put the job off and the slabs finally found lodgement in the Boyd attic to remain, forgotten, until a few days ago. Boyd turned the wood over to Terry, who has shipped it to the Louisville wood turning plant.

"Dixie Flyers" Visit Grant Field

G. M. A. DIVIDES DOUBLE-HEADER

Cadet B Team Beats Purples, as A's Lose to Smithies.

Georgia Military Academy basketball players broke even in a double-header Wednesday afternoon on the College Park court in the fifth round of the big three schedule. The Cadet "B" team defeated Boys' High, 22 to 14, in the preliminary and Tech High won the "A" game in the night-cap by a score of 25 to 14.

A rally in the fourth quarter of the game enabled the Tech High "A" team to win over the Cadets.

Play, except in the final period, was unusually close with neither team having any particular advantage, but near the close, Gibson was inserted into the Smithy lineup and accounted for three field goals. Paul Callis at center, and Copeland also played well for the winners, with Callis high scorer with eight points.

G. M. A.'s attack was led by Frank Guerry and "Yank" Ludwig. Guerry was high point scorer with five points, while Ludwig sank two long field goals. He also played good defensive basketball.

In the preliminary "B" game, it was consistent play on the part of every player. Paget was high scorer for the Cadets with eight points. Silva and Mach also played well for the winners.

Appleby and Gibson played the best ball for Boys' High.

Ray Conger Beats Martin, Swiss Ace

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Ray Conger, slim young Iowan from the Illinois A. C., raced Dr. Paul Martin, Swiss surgeon, into submission tonight in the 1,000-yard special at the Newark A. C. indoor meet to win by five yards, with Frank Nordell, New York University freshman, in second place. Martin was third. The time was 2:17:9.

It was the fifth time Conger and Martin had met and only the second time the American had won.

Dr. Martin was fresh off the boat, having landed from Europe only last week and in the opinion of observers raced a creditable 1,000, considering his lack of practice.

Rice Flyers Predict Better U. S. Trackmen

Claude Bracey and Nelson Greer, Here on Visit, Say America Due for Better Times.

By Ralph McGill.

NELSON GREER, nationally known middle distance man, and Claude Bracey, "the Texas flyer," one of the better sprinters, believe that the United States will reach its peak in track and field athletics by 1932 when the Olympic games will be held at Los Angeles.

Both men, products of Rice Institute, stopped in Atlanta Wednesday en route to New York and the indoor games there and worked out with the Georgia Tech athletes. Both are close friends of Ed Hamm, Olympic broad-jump champion and now coach of the Jackets.

Greer, who was the junior national champion half-miler in 1929, is one of the best middle distance men in the country and is regarded as a sure competitor in the 1932 Olympics. Bracey, "the Texas flyer," is also highly regarded as a sprinter.

"I BELIEVE that the United States, which has had a surplus of sprinters, will turn to distance events more and more," said Greer.

"I think the coach at Rice, Ernie Hjertberg, will do much toward reviving interest in distance running," continued Greer.

"Hjertberg had charge of the Swedish track team in the Olympics some years ago and also handled the Holland team. He is a great distance coach and he is developing a group of distance men in the west.

Sprinters Fail.

"AMERICA'S SPRINTERS fell down in the last Olympic games, but there was a dearth of distance men. The theory has been advanced that this lack of distance men is because of the American passion for speed. I doubt this. I don't think we are growing softer, either. Boys follow leaders. Our track heroes in the past years have been Paddock and other stars who were sprinters. Aside from DeMar in the Marathon there was no outstanding distance hero. England had three good ones and they inspired the boys there to go in for distance running. The same was true of other nations. I think there will be a revival of interest in middle and distance running in the United States before the Olympic games and that this year will see some new men develop."

The visit of the two men to Grant field provided a great impetus for track work at Georgia Tech. The entire squad of runners received some lessons from the visiting stars. The Tech track men were all stirred up and began to run furiously about the field, taking extra laps without urging.

Both men joined in acclaiming Tech's choice of Ed Hamm as track coach. Hamm, who has participated in the Olympic games, where he was a winner, and who was a winner in practically all the large meets of this country and in special meets abroad, has as much experience as any coach in the country. Both Greer and Bracey declared they believed that as he learned the coaching job he would be-

Spiller Recalls Days of Big Dent

"I enjoyed The Constitution's story about Elliott Dent, the Cracker pitcher of 1913 who helped win the pennant that year," said R. J. Spiller, Cracker official.

"When I read that story Wednesday morning I recalled the great games that year. I was not connected with the club then but joined with other fans in making up the purse to bring Finis Wilson back to New Orleans. He beat Mobile to give Atlanta the pannant. We then bought him a suit of clothes. They were great days and Dent was a great help to the club. I hope we can have a pennant for the fans this year."

J. P. C.-AGGIES CLASH TONIGHT

Activities in Atlanta's major basketball ranks for the week will get going at 8:30 o'clock tonight when the Jewish Progressive Club quintet meets the North Georgia Agricultural College team from Dahlonega. A preliminary game will be played at 7:30 o'clock between the J. P. C. Reds and some strong Atlanta team.

It will be the first of a series of games during the week-end and will be followed Friday night with the Y. M. C. A. Triangles and the Etowah Dodgers on the Y court and the Tech-Georgia scrap slated for Saturday night on the city auditorium court.

The Progressives after a disasstrous start have improved considerably during the past three weeks.

DATES ANNOUNCED.

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., Jan. 28.—More than 150 contestants are expected to enter the 1931 Florida state senior and junior A. A. U. championship swimming meet to be held here the last week in February or first week in March.

CRACKER 'FARM' SURE TO START, SPILLER SAYS

Another Minor League Team Seeks Atlanta Tie-Up.

By Ralph McGill.

Atlanta's tie-up with the Columbus club of the Southeastern league will not be affected if the league fails to organize for the coming season, it was learned Wednesday.

Columbus, one of the best baseball cities in minor league baseball, plans to make application to the Sally league, one of higher classification than the Southeastern, if that league fails.

Columbus would no doubt be welcome. The Sally can use a city which pays its own way. Cities where the baseball fans storm into the stands each day are very rare. The Foxes will hardly be out of baseball this season.

Meanwhile the Crackers are talking with another club which wants to tie up with the Atlanta baseball company. There isn't so much fruit on the dollar trees this year, especially in the smaller minors. And all this talk of the 11 millionaires who own the Crackers is inspiring a rush to get tied up with the dollars.

DOUBT.

"I am informed that the Southeastern league may hold a meeting Sunday to discuss the plans for the season," said R. J. Spiller Wednesday. "The meeting has not yet been called. If it is I will attend it. There is some doubt about the league starting.

"We are not greatly worried because there is another club anxious to have us take over control as we plan to do at Columbus. And Columbus is pretty sure to be in some league.

"The Atlanta baseball club will develop as many young ball players as possible each year. New blood means better baseball," continued the Cracker business manager.

THE ROSTER.

Business at the Cracker office is practically at a standstill. There are not many vacancies to be filled. The Cracker roster already contains a number of rookies of promise.

The Cracker roster follows:

Pitchers—"B" men: J. F. Cummings, Paul Gregory, Burkett Patterson, Hugh Starling, Sanford Dickson. "A" men: Climax Blethem, Red Bates, Ray Francis, Chester Howard, Elmer Hearn, Lowell Douglass, Joe Kiefer, Andy Messenger, J. C. Oldham and Bob Weiland.

Catchers—"B" men: J. D. Patterson, Cliff Knox. "A" men: Fred Polvogt, Chick Autrey and Ernie Kreuger.

Infielders—"B" men: Amos Martin, W. A. Alexander, J. H. Hammond. "A" men: Jim Battle, Roy Grimes, Bob Lamotte, Jack Sheehan, Jack Ryan and Mule Shirley.

Outfielders—"B" men: Jack Shipley and John Natolie. "A" men: Doug Taitt, Red Barron, Roy Carlyle and Si Rosenthal.

Campbell's Racer Given Inspection

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Captain Malcolm Campbell, British racing driver, will not take his Blue Bird II., in which he hopes to better the existing world's land speed here until Saturday or Sunday, he said late today.

The car was transferred to a storage garage late today and mechanics began work of assembling.

"There's quite a bit of work yet to be done," Campbell said, "and it is very unlikely we shall be able to finish before Saturday.

In addition to connecting wiring accessories and parts shipped separately, Campbell said he was considering transfer of the tachometer from the nose of the car to the dashboard, together with other minor changes.

Mechanics said they expected to be able to start the motor Friday for checking purposes.

GEORGIA FIVE DRILLS ROOKIES FOR TECH GAME

Sanford and Smith Both Out But Bulldogs Are Confident.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 28.—Nothing daunted by the fact that two of their star players, one an All-Southern forward, are warming the bench temporarily, the remainder of the Georgia Bulldogs today entered the final stages of their week's preparations for the second meeting of the season with the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets in Atlanta Saturday night.

A hard hour and a half drill was the lot of the seven Bulldogs, who see a night of action before them Saturday as they endeavor to keep a blot off the escutcheon that hasn't been stained in a Tech-Georgia athletic contest since the Bulldog baseball team lost a game to the Jackets in the spring of 1929. Those seven Bulldogs will have quite some job on their young hands come Saturday night.

A full seven days' rest was given the Georgia squad in preparation for its second encounter with the Yellow Jackets. Their last game was with the Auburn Tigers, and they barely managed to nose out the Plainsmen last Friday night in the last minute of play. A game scheduled with Auburn for Friday night of this week was cancelled to allow the Tigers to keep a road engagement with Vanderbilt Saturday.

On the shoulders of little Tommy Moran and the even smaller Pap Terrell will fall the burden of holding down the forward positions in the Tech game, unless Sandy Sanford's injured knee heals unexpectedly or Catfish Smith's eligibility is settled sooner than expected. Both Captain Sanford and the Catfish, three-letter man, are expected to be ready for next week's four games.

Sweet William Strickland, regular center, will hold forth in the center of the court for the Bulldogs. Leroy Young, who made a guard position look easy his first term on the varsity, and Tommy Reeder, rounding out his third year as a Bulldog, will play guard, as usual. Whitey Bryant, last season reserve, and Mack Crenshaw, a sophomore, are the only replacements in the Bulldog camp.

Bole, Canada Sculler, Retires to Business

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 28.—(AP) Elswood Bole, one of the best scullers developed in western Canada in recent years, has announced his retirement from the sport to devote his time to business.

His action breaks up the strongest doubles combination in Canada. Bole and his cousin, Bob Richards, last summer swept every event in which they were entered, winning the doubles titles at the northwest international regatta, the Canadian championship, and the British empire and international meets.

Checker Wizard Will Play Here

Newell W. Banks, internationally famous checker player, will appear in competition in Atlanta February 2, 3 and 4, at the Henry Grady hotel, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Banks is in training for a match with Robert Stewart, of Glasgow, Scotland, champion of the world, and is playing a series of matches all over the country. Blindfolded, he will play simultaneous checker and chess matches here against Atlanta's best.

It was 19 years ago that Mr. Banks, then 23 years old, defeated Hugh Henderson for the American checker title, 4 to 3, with 43 drawn matches. Later he lost a match for the world's title to Robert Stewart in Scotland, 2 to 1, with 37 drawn matches.

The arrangements for the matches here are in the hands of Fred Williams, who may be reached at Walnut 4393.

Mrs. Hollin's Blaris was second and Martin Smith's Guidinglight third in the four-horse race.

LEATHER FLIES AS TECH BOXERS START TOURNEY

Two Knockouts Feature Opening Round of Ring Meet.

Gloves filled the air most all Wednesday afternoon and the red badge of courage was very much in evidence at the Georgia Tech gym as the boxers got started on their first day of elimination matches.

The matches will continue today and Saturday and in March the school champions, in all weights, will be decided.

The gym was packed by an admiring student body. Thirteen fights, three-round affairs, were run off. There were but two knockouts and one of them was a technical affair, Plouden slipping and hitting his head on the floor near the close of the first round.

The fights were all furious affairs, however. They lacked skill but they lacked nothing in courage. They stood in there and swapped fists wrapped in just eight ounces of padding. And they weren't pulling punches.

There was more fighting packed in the one afternoon than professional fights will see in a year. They stood in there and swung hard and fast. And they left the ring with their arms about one another's shoulders, headed for the showers and a rubdown.

There is such a thing as an amateur spirit after all, it seems. And after all it can't be over-emphasized.

"Chip" Robert, member of the Tech board of trustees and also of the athletic association, was not present. His son was. Chip Robert, Jr., won a close decision from a youngster named Thorne in the second bout of the 135-pound class.

Perhaps the best fight of the afternoon was the Freyer-McGraw fight, won by the former, a Little Rock freshman. Berlin and Lyman, the former winning also fought well.

There was no lack of spirit in any of them. The spirit was willing and so was the flesh.

Steve Hartney, well-known amateur boxer of some years ago and now a successful young business man, handled all the fights in the ring.

Coach W. A. Alexander, Robert Martin and Phil Dagnon served as judges, while Captain Henry Robinson was timer.

The middleweight and light-heavyweight fights this afternoon will begin at 4:15 o'clock.

Results of Wednesday's bouts were:

125-Pound Class—Jarrell knocked out Markert in second round.

158-Pound Class—Hungerford defeated Meredith; Morris defeated Sutter.

ARTISTS OF GEORGIA OPEN ANNUAL SHOW

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Association of Georgia Artists opened their annual show at the Telfair Academy Wednesday afternoon with a private view, arranged by the Telfair Academy for members of the academy and members of the Association of Georgia Artists.

The show contains much work of fine quality. In an exhibition including over 80 paintings and representing the work of artists in various parts of the state and some of them with long professional experience, there are naturally many pieces of outstanding merit but the level of the exhibition is high.

The jury that chose the paintings from among those exhibited was composed of Miss Anna Heyward Taylor, of Charleston; Edward S. Shorter, of Macon, and Christopher P. H. Murphy, of Savannah. Mr. Shorter was obliged to return to Macon before the formal opening of the show. Macon was represented this afternoon, however, by one of the most distinguished artists of the state, A. E. Boardman, president of the Macon Art Club and a vice president of the Georgia Artists' Association.

He is represented in the exhibition by several small and highly individual water colors, firmly patterned, with emphasis on the decorative elements in the composition and on variety of color.

Clara and Daisy Are Sued Together

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Clara Bow, "It" girl of the screen, and Daisy De Boe, her blonde erstwhile secretary, were named joint defendants today in a $400 suit filed by the Beverly Hills National bank.

Miss De Boe is in the county jail awaiting sentence next Monday on one count of grand theft from Miss Bow.

Cash and jewels valued at $3,000, which Miss De Boe proved were her own during the trial, were attached when the suit was filed.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

WITNESS SAYS FUNDS OF TENNESSEE DIVERTED

$250,000 Bridge Moneys Should Have Gone to Treasurer, Says Tipton.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 28.—(AP) Testimony was heard today that $250,000 of bridge funds, which the witness said under the law should have been turned over to the state treasurer, were transferred to an institution that claimed, in resisting a receivership action, it was not authorized to receive deposits.

Nat Tipton, an assistant attorney-general, in response to questions of the legislative investigating committee, said that the $250,000 represented the expected difference between the estimated cost of two projects and the actual cost. He testified that on June 30 the highway department drew two vouchers totaling $250,000 on the Fourth and First National bank, Nashville, in favor of the Holston Trust Company, Knoxville, now in receivership.

"If this money was, as the records show, the contemplated saving between the estimated cost of the projects and the completion of the projects, was there anything to be done lawfully except to turn it over to the treasurer?" asked Chairman Walter Faulkner.

"Nothing whatever," Tipton replied.

The witness said that R. H. Baker, commissioner of highways, had made some explanation about the matter but he did not recall it exactly.

Faulkner asked if one of the defenses of the Holston Trust Company against the state's petition for receivership was not that the $250,000 deposit was unauthorized and "unlawfully placed there by the commissioner of highways."

"That was one of the many defenses against the bill," the assistant attorney-general replied. "There were numerous others."

"They adopted this theory," Mr. Tipton continued. "They set up the fact that this deposit made by the commissioner of highways was unlawful, that the relation of debtor and creditor never existed between the state and the Holston Trust Company, and although it got the money, since the debtor and creditor relation never existed, it was held in trust and the state was entitled to follow the fund into the investments made with it."

Touring the country to familiarize himself with the facilities being offered passengers by air transport companies and with schedules and rail tie-ups, Emmons J. Whitcomb, vice president of the well known Raymond & Whitcomb Co., Boston travel bureau, arrived at Candler field late Wednesday afternoon in an American Airways tri-motored Fokker from Los Angeles. Leaving the California city Monday morning, Mr. Whitcomb had an opportunity to see what air transport operators have to put up with along meteorological lines. His plane ran into a severe sandstorm, stirred up by a gale which at times reached a velocity of 75 miles, and was forced down for the night at Tucson, Ariz. Mr. Whitcomb went into Texas by train that night and Wednesday morning resumed his plane journey at Fort Worth.

Making his first long journey by air, Mr. Whitcomb was enthusiastic over the speed, comfort and convenience made possible through the medium of plane travel and it is not at all unlikely that Raymond & Whitcomb tours in the near future will include an American air journey in its extensive list. Mr. Whitcomb began his 6,000-mile air trip at Boston, flew to Chicago over N. A. T. and to San Francisco over Transcontinental Air Transport and Western Air. He will continue his travels this morning, having booked reservation to New York in a Curtiss Kingbird of Eastern Air Transport, Inc.

Governor-elect Richard B. Russell, Jr., Mayor James L. Key and other dignitaries of state and city and county have been invited by the Pan-American Petroleum Corporation to take a hop in Pan-Am's Ford trimotor, which landed at Candler field Wednesday on a tour of the south, in which section officials of the company are inspecting the concern's properties and seeking to enhance interest in aviation. In addition to Pilot Phelps and Co-pilot Lamont, the Pan-Am party consists of James McCrory, assistant general manager; M. I. Slagsbol, Georgia division manager, stationed here, and E. L. Anderson, of the Mack Truck Corporation.

The big plane, which is to stay here until Monday, landed at Candler field after a visit to Rome, and was met at the airport by Luke Arnold, Mayor Key's secretary, representing the municipality, and J. H. Gray, Candler field manager. It was stated Wednesday night that the Ford would make a total of 16 flights during its stay here—eight today and eight Friday—and that many local officials and newspapermen would be carried aloft. Monday the plane will take off for New Orleans, Memphis and other southern points.

Ben Epps, Sr., of Athens, who has been flying around Georgia for lo! these many, arrived at the airport Wednesday afternoon flying an airplane which, from engine mount to tail-skid, he made himself in his shop at home. The craft, a biplane of conventional type, is powered with a Wright Gipsy four-in-line motor of 90 horsepower, and is said to be a good performer. Epps is slated to return to Athens today. Epps, Junior, his 14-year-old progeny, soloed a year or so ago in his father's Waco 9 and won the distinction, thereby, of being Georgia's youngest pilot. The homemade craft was stored Wednesday night in the Curtiss-Wright hangar.

Sale of airplanes in the south should show a decided turn for the better in the immediate future, with representatives of several manufacturers on constant tour thoroughout the territory. Howard Ailor, who arrived at the Blevins hangar Tuesday afternoon from Troy, Ohio, in a Warner-powered Waco "F," made a trip to Opelika, Ala., and returned Wednesday, and this morning will take off for New Orleans and other points in that vicinity. He is the southern sales representative for the Waco Aircraft Corporation.

Lee Smith, who travels and sells for Stinson, left Candler field Wednesday morning for a three-week tour of Florida, in a new Lycoming Stinson Junior. His wife is flying along with him.

L. F. Mason, head of the Montgomery School of Aeronautics, passed through the airport Wednesday morning in a Ryan Brougham, powered with a Whirlwind "nine," bound for Birmingham with a passenger. He stopped only for gas at the Blevins Aircraft Corporation hangar.

W. M. Joranby, who arrived at the Curtiss-Wright hangar Tuesday afternoon on a flight to Jacksonville in a Kinner Bird, continued his journey Wednesday morning.

MILLICAN TO ASK DISCOUNT REFUND

Alderman Says That Retroactive Water Bill Measure Is Illegal.

Asserting that citizens of Atlanta have a right to complain of the manner in which the water discounts were eliminated, Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth ward, declared Wednesday he will offer a measure in council Monday making the discount elimination effective as of February 1, and will accompany that with another paper providing that the borough shall refund discounts already collected.

Millican's announcement followed an agreement between attorneys representing the borough and complainants in a suit for an injunction to prevent a water raise over the hearing which was slated today before Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of Fulton county superior court. The case will be argued Monday instead of today, it was said.

"I feel that the borough should not have eliminated the discount on bills already rendered," Millican declared. "That is making the ordinance retroactive, and would be illegal. If we must eliminate the discounts and insist on payment of the gross bill, we should give those affected ample notice. My measure is designed to give them that notice.

"Those who have been forced to pay the full amount of their bills, should have rebates, and I shall seek that."

The injunction suits were brought by George Eckford, Fulton county representative-elect in the general assembly, and other citizens. It seeks to prevent collection of gross amount of the water bills.

DO-X OCEAN FLIGHT IS POSTPONED AGAIN

German Ministry Sets Saturday as Date for Hop to Brazil.

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 28.—(AP) The start of the giant German flying boat DO-X on its south Atlantic flight to Brazil was postponed until 7 o'clock Saturday morning a few hours before the air liner was scheduled to take off.

Postponement of the flight was decided upon tonight at a meeting of delegates of the German ministry of transportation. Officials said they were not quite satisfied with the behavior of the 12 American motors in today's test flight, although they claimed a record had been established for heavier than air machines by carrying for the first time a weight of 55 tons.

The plane will be given a rest tomorrow morning while the engines are overhauled, the last test flight before the take-off being planned for the afternoon.

Friday will be a day of inaction, according to the commander of the DO-X, Captain Friedrich Christiansen, who said that "no captain goes to sea on Friday."

The plane was damaged by a fire in one of its wings last November on the eve of its take-off for South America but was repaired recently. It was poised for the start tomorrow when announcement of the postponement was made.

Dr. Cox Addresses U. D. C. Chapter

The address of Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory University, on Robert E. Lee before Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., Tuesday afternoon, was notable for its brilliance and breadth of historic detail. As an introduction to his subject, Dr. Cox made a plea that the history of the old south be preserved and stored in libraries for succeeding generations to know the rich heritage of the past. In the unbelievable industrial development that is sweeping the south, there will be nothing to fear from this industralism if the spirit of the old south is not lost. Dr. Cox took for his theme the decisions of importance in the life of Lee and measured this great man's life and character by these decisions.

Mrs. Harvie Jordan, historian of the chapter, read a paper on Stratford Hall, giving the history of the movement to make Lee's birthplace in Virginia a shrine.

Mrs. Frank Matthews, vice president of Crawford W. Long chapter, U. D. C., invited Atlanta chapter to join in the celebration of the birthday of Jefferson Davis June 3. A valuable picture of General Nathan Bedford Forrest was loaned the chapter by Mrs. Forrest.

NATIONAL BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL HEAD IS VISITOR

Miss McClench Honored At Dinner This Evening

After a triumphant visit to clubs in every important city in Georgia, Miss Marion McClench, of Ann Arbor, Mich., national president of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, and Smith College graduate, will be central figure at the dinner to be given this evening at the Winecoff hotel. Another important personage, Mrs. Louis J. Roos, of Savannah, president of Georgia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will be principal speaker at the dinner. Miss McClench is traveling through the state in the interest of the promotion of this organization, which is an important factor in women's activities.

Atlanta Business and Professional Women, of which Miss Leita Thompson is president, will be hostess at the dinner honoring these distinguished visitors, and other officers of the club are Mrs. James E. Fuller, first vice president; Mrs. Blanche S. Richy, second vice president; Miss Edna Bordewisch, recording secretary; Mrs. R. H. Govan, corresponding secretary, and Miss Ethel Holbrook, treasurer. Miss Kate E. Hammerschmidt and Miss Blanche Reed are members of the board of directors. Among those attending the dinner will be Misses Leita Thompson, Lucijene Alexander, Clara Nolen, Myrtle Whittle, Sue Suttles, Nan Hope, Blanche A. Reed, Rebecca Shuman, Ethel Holbrook, Maude Sewell, Cleo Bradley, Kate Hammerschmidt, Ann Mullins, Jennie Williams, Edna Boidewisch, Elizabeth Eager, Elizabeth Simpson, Dallis Dumas and Mesdames Cecil Fuller, Blanche S. Richy, Wilber Colvin, Pauline Titlebaum, Clyde Govan, Janice McKinney, George Gillon, Kate Key, Jane Morgan and A. W. Richards.

Smith College Graduate.

When Miss McClench graduated from Smith College and decided to enter the insurance business, the way could have been made very easy for her, since her father, the late William W. McClench, was president of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company. By remaining in the headquarters offices in Springfield, Mass., her home city, and working under his supervision, she might have had a thousand advantages not enjoyed by the usual employe. Miss McClench was not satisfied with the easy way, and preferred to shape her own career, so she went to the Detroit office, where she was comparatively unknown. There she built for herself a conspicuous record of success as one of the leading insurance women in the middle west, and opened an office of her own in Ann Arbor.

Miss McClench has always been deeply interested in clubs for women, and was a member of the original group of 200 women who gathered in St. Louis in July, 1919, to organize the federation. She has been president of the Detroit Business Woman's Club, and served as president of the Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women. She has been a member of committees of the national federation, and was national recording secretary in 1928-1929, and served as general chairman of the 1929 national convention at Mackinac Island, Mich.

A strong advocate of college education for women, Miss McClench emphasizes the fact that the most valuable education should be directed to a definite end during college years. The cultivation of one talent as a means of livelihood, whether used or not for that purpose, she holds to be the most valuable asset any girl can have. It is her belief that more and more women are going to take their places in the business world, not supplanting men, but working with them, supplementing with details many projects hitherto viewed in large outline. Miss McClench is a woman of unusual personal charm, with a background of fine New England tradition.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

MOTHER BROWN HUNTS FOR A MOUSE.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

It often happens, we confess,
That what we think is but a guess.
—Billy Mink.

This is very true. There is altogether too much guessing in this world. Sometimes it is called jumping at conclusions, but jumping at conclusions is only guessing. The result is a great number of mistakes, some of which are serious and cause a great deal of trouble. It is seldom safe to guess, for while your guess may be right, it is quite as likely to be wrong.

Mother Brown guessed that there were mice in the attic. She wouldn't admit that she was guessing. Goodness, no. She was sure. Of course, it wouldn't have been surprising if there were mice in the attic. But Mother Brown doesn't like mice, not in the house, anyway. She is too good a housekeeper not to be disturbed at the thought that Nibbler the House Mouse or any of his relatives are in the house. So when she heard certain sounds on a visit to the attic, she was certain that there were mice there and she could think of nothing but getting rid of them at once.

It happened this way: There had been two or three warm days, although it was midwinter. Mother Brown had wanted something in the attic. When she opened the door she heard sounds that made her prick up her ears at once. It was a series of fine squeaks and what she insisted was the scratching of little claws.

"Mice!" she exclaimed. "There is a nest of mice up here and I didn't think there was a mouse in the house. I can't have that. No, sir, I can't have that."

She at once began a search, but although she hunted and hunted she couldn't find that nest. She looked behind things and under things and poked and peered into all the corners but not even a sign of a mouse did she find. There were no torn bits of paper and no signs of gnawing, such as are unsual when mice are about. Two or three times she heard the squeaks and the sound of little claws, but she couldn't tell just where those sounds came from.

"I'll get Black Pussy," said she, "and I guess she will soon find those mice."

She went downstairs for Black Pussy, but Black Pussy was not there. She went to the door and called and called, but no Black Pussy. Finally she took two or three mouse traps up in the attic and baited these with toasted cheese.

"There," said she, "I guess these will get them."

The next day she looked at the traps, but the cheese was untouched. It was a cold day and the attic was cold. She heard nothing. She got Black Pussy and shut her in there. Black Pussy didn't like it. After awhile she began to meow to be let out. Finally, Mother Brown let her out.

"Did you catch those mice?" she demanded.

"Meow," replied Black Pussy, which might have meant yes and might have meant no. Mother Brown was none the wiser.

Every day for a week she visited the attic, but heard and saw nothing to suggest that Nibbler or any of his family were about, and she decided that Black Pussy had caught them. Then came two or three warm days and again Mother Brown visited the attic. As she opened the door she again heard that squeaking and scratching.

"It is a nest of young mice. It can't be anything else," she declared, and once more searched everywhere she could think of. As before, she found no sign of a mouse. The noise had ceased, so she could not be guided by this. But there wasn't a doubt in her mind that mice were there. She rebaited the traps and she once more shut Black Pussy up there. As before, Black Pussy merely said "meow" when she was finally let out, and as before Mother Brown was none the wiser. The cheese was untouched and for a day or two she heard no mouse-like sounds. Then she did hear them and her patience was quite exhausted. She said as much.

"Probably it was a twig rubbing on the roof," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "You know a branch of one of the trees hangs low over the roof."

"I tell you it was mice," insisted Mother Brown. "I guess I know a mouse when I hear it." And nothing would convince her that it was anything else.

Georgia Mother Solves Problem

"MY little daughter, Betty, caused me many anxious moments," says Mrs. L. L. Brown, 628 Glenwood Ave., S. E., Atlanta. "She was quite bilious, didn't want to play and had very little appetite.

"She suffered a lot from colds until I thought about California Fig Syrup and decided to give her some. Fig Syrup helped Betty remarkably. She is strong; able to avoid most colds, has a good appetite and digestion; is quite the picture of health as you can see."

For over 50 years, California Fig Syrup has been helping bilious, headachy, weak, constipated babies and children. Doctors by thousands recommend this pure vegetable product. Children love its flavor. It acts gently to open the bowels in colds or children's diseases. It cleanses a child's system harmlessly and in a hurry. IMAGINE! 60%* of your coffee flavor gone before it reaches you. Stolen away by the air! This is the amazing discovery coffee experts make.

At last Science has found the way to stop this flavor loss. It is through the new White House "Thermo-fresh" process.

The moment White House Coffee is roasted, it is rushed from the ovens to its "Thermo-fresh" tins and vacuum sealed. Thus, no flavor can vanish. No goodness can escape.

When you unlock the lid of White House Coffee, a new taste thrill awaits you. . . . All the luxurious freshness of the roasting oven . . . all the full-bodied goodness of an exquisite blend. DESTROY COLD GERMS

Handkerchiefs used during colds soon contain millions of germs . . . are menace to health

Disposable Handkerchiefs

You use . . . then discard

THE importance of using Kleenex during colds has received dramatic confirmation from the scientific laboratory!

A series of tests prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that a single use of a handkerchief during colds fills it with thousands of disease germs! Germs which carry infection back to the user every time the handkerchief is used again. Making recovery slower, more difficult.

Thus, the handkerchief may be an actual menace during colds—a menace which Kleenex entirely removes.

Use only once

Kleenex removes every danger of self-infection. It permits the complete destruction of millions of germs which otherwise must be carried about in purse or pocket—then saved days longer in the laundry bag!

Kleenex is a soft, immaculate, super-absorbent tissue. The size of a handkerchief. So gentle, so soothing, that irritation is impossible. So inexpensive that each tissue may be used just once, then discarded.

You buy Kleenex in Cellophane-sealed packages. Each tissue is as sanitary as it looks—and its snowy whiteness is a joy to see.

The use of Kleenex will materially reduce your laundry bill. It is ideal for children.

Kleenex has many other uses. Beauty experts say these absorbent tissues are the safe, sanitary way to remove cold cream. Being powerfully absorbent, Kleenex picks up all dirt and powder along with cleansing cream.

Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store. Comes in three sizes: 25c, 50c and $1.00. Send the coupon for generous sample.

BACTERIOLOGICAL TESTS SHOW:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 germs per handkerchief. The types of organisms in the enumeration are those known to be associated with colds.

2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when rinsed in boiling water and/or soap water, were found not to be killed or appreciably inhibited from growing.

These conclusions were reached after a series of scientific tests by a former professor of bacteriology at Northwestern University Medical School.

What science says about the ordinary handkerchief

1. It may self-infect the user time after time.
2. Spread infection among others.
3. Infect clothing in which carried.
4. Infect clothing in laundry bags (germs survive for days).

Fakers Must Fail

In Their Absurd Appeals

To the Fat

Fakers have flourished in their appeals to the over-fat. Not many remain. Some of their methods were harmful, some absurd. All have perished quickly in the test.

One reason is that medical science has found a great cause of excess fat. It lies in a lacking gland secretion which must be supplied. Doctors the world over now supply it, and excess fat in late years has been going fast.

A world-famous medical laboratory embodies this factor in Marmola prescription tablets. Not to oppose doctors, but to supply their best help in a very economical way. Thus Marmola opens this right way to millions who might otherwise go wrong.

Marmola has been used for 24 years—millions of boxes of it. The use has grown and grown, while the frauds disappeared by the scores. Now in every circle you can see the results. Your own friends can recite them. Slender figures are the vogue.

Marmola, in every box, gives the formula complete. It also tells you why the fat goes, why new vim appears.

If you have been enticed by fakes, by silly claims, go now and use what doctors use. Combat your fat in the right and scientific way. Gain normal figure, normal vim in Nature's way. Then tell your friends about it—they should know. Go now and order a $1 box from your druggist. Read the book, watch the many good results.

Sibley Is Praised as Jurist, Citizen by U. S. Grand Jurors

Special Presentments Lauding Judge Filed on Court Records at Federal Building.

Special presentments praising the elevation of Judge Samuel H. Sibley, formerly of the district court of north Georgia, to the circuit court of appeals were returned Wednesday by the federal grand jury to Judge William H. Barrett, of Augusta, sitting as a special judge here.

The resolutions praise Judge Sibley both as a jurist and a private citizen and lauded highly the work of his court.

On order of Judge Barrett the presentments were entered upon the minutes of the court.

"We, the federal grand jury for the present term, at our session held this day, took notice, as a body, of your recent elevation to the bench of the circuit court of appeals for the fifth circuit, and now desire to express to your honor the keen satisfaction we all feel over your preferment.

"During the years of your service as district judge you have set an example of fearless administration of justice that some may equal but none excel. The work of your court has been handled with efficiency and dispatch while at the same time every party at interest before you has received full measure of consideration and justice.

"As a citizen of the community you have added substantially to the moral and intellectual upbuilding of the whole community.

"You are a vitally constructive force which we delight to learn will not be lost to us through your elevation to this new honor so well deserved and so promptly conferred.

"Our all too brief association with you during our service as grand jurors has but served to enhance our respect for you and to make us realize the more keenly how fortunately this district has been in having you preside in this court. And in leaving this court to assume your more responsible duties we desire that you take with you the sincere good wishes of all of us for your continued good health, success in your new position and your personal happiness and contentment.

"Respectfully yours,

"ROBERT GREGG, Foreman,

"JOSEPH HORACEK, Secty."

"Let the above be entered on the minutes of this court, and a copy thereof certified to Honorable Samuel H. Sibley.

"In open court, January 28, 1931.

"WM. H. BARRETT,
"U. S. Judge"

Reasons for Encouraging Building Of Giant Dirigibles Told Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Ships of the future, speeding their passengers through the air instead of plowing the waves, were pictured today before the house interstate and foreign commerce committee.

The group had under consideration a bill to encourage the building of dirigibles in America and to provide for helpful air mail subsidies similar to those now in existence for airplanes and steamships.

As evidence that the proposed airships are feasible, numerous witnesses cited the records of the Los Angeles and the Graf Zeppelin, praising the latter for its round-the-world and Europe-South America—North America flights.

Jerome G. Hunsaker, vice president of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation, of Akron, Ohio, which is building two giant dirigibles for the navy, described the airship he believes will some day carry passengers and cargoes around the world.

For economical operation on an international route, Hunsaker predicted an airship of 7,500,000 cubic feet, able to carry 80 passengers and 25,000 pounds of mail and express in addition to a crew of 50. Such a ship, he said, including parts and helium to lift it, could be built for $4,500,000.

For trans-Atlantic service, Hunsaker said, terminal sites in the United States should be established in the general vicinities of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Richmond and Alexandria, Va. The European terminal probably would be in the Rhine valley between Paris and Berlin.

Hunsaker testified that original construction of ships and terminals would cost about $9,000,000 and urged early passage of the pending bill.

Other witnesses who approved the bill were Cletus Keating, of New York; William P. MacCracken, Jr., former assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics; Paul W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation, and Charles A. Lawrence of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

Kotex is highly absorbent; perfectly hygienic; it is shaped to fit comfortably.

WHY do you suppose our outstanding hospitals, staffed by world-famous surgeons, make it a point to specify Kotex? There's more than one reason!

In the first place, it is hygienically safe. In the second place, it is amazingly absorbent—and that is vital for all surgical purposes. Actually—think of this—Kotex is five times as absorbent as the finest surgical cotton! Each one of its delicate layers is a quick, complete absorbent in itself.

Adjustable—that's important

These layers of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding can be removed, readjusted to individual needs. That makes a lot of difference not only to hospitals but to you.

Because it is so absorbent and because it absorbs scientifically (not just in one concentrated area, but all over) Kotex naturally stays soft. Another thing—it can be worn on either side with equal protection—both sides are absorbent.

Hospitals need the best. So do you. Safety, security, good health demand it. Why should you be content with anything else when you can buy Kotex everywhere?—at all drug, dry goods and department stores.

You ask for it by name. Simply specify Kotex.

Kotex Company, Chicago.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.
3—Can be worn on either side with equal protection, no possibility of embarrassment.

INSTALLMENT LVIII.

"You're darn right, that's it!" Lynn's dull acquiescence flared into anger. "I couldn't figure it out at the time, but I had ten years with nothing to do but think. Believe me, you can do a lot of thinking in ten years. I got it doped out after a while—the only way it could have been. I wasn't where I could get any proof, of course. But I vowed that if I ever got out, I'd spend the rest of my life hunting him. If I ever found him and faced him with it, I'd get the truth out of him, all right.

"That's all I wanted—the truth. It was too late to pay me back for what he'd done to me. You can't give a man back the ten years of his life that he's spent in a gray hell. I just wanted to face him with it—to show him what he'd done to me. I wanted to tell him a few things. Maybe I thought about it so long that I got a little batty myself. Anyway, it gave me something to live for—thinking about it. Now I reckon I'll get strung up for it, and that's all the good it's done me. Funny, ain't it?" The brief light flickered and died from his eyes.

"You aren't strung up yet," Peter reminded him. "How did you dope it out?"

"It was the old lady's will that set me to thinking," Lynn answered. "Here's how I figured it. It was either Mr. Jerome's ghost that I saw—or somebody that looked just like him. I didn't think of that in time—but I'm not one to believe in a ghost unless I have to, only it looked as if it couldn't be anything else. You see?"

Peter nodded encouragingly.

"Then I got to figuring who else could look enough like Mr. de la Montanya to have fooled me. It came to me all of a sudden, when I read about the old lady's will, that we'd only Mr. Jerome's word for it that his brother was dead. I'd heard her say hundreds of times how much alike they looked, though they were so different inside. And I'd only had the one glimpse of the face, dim-like, across the hall and through the gap in the curtains.

"The old lady didn't quite believe that David was dead—see? Well, the more I thought of it, the more I didn't believe it either. Whoever came in and killed Mr. Jerome that night wasn't a stranger to him.

"There wasn't any ring at the doorbell, and a burglar wouldn't have come into a lighted room. If he had, Mr. Jerome would have yelled—and the noise that woke me up that night wasn't any yell. I've tried and tried to think what it was, and so far as I can make out, it was a sort of thump—the sound of Mr. Jerome when he fell on the floor, most likely.

"There's just one man in the world that I could have seen in the mirror, besides Mr. Jerome himself, and that was his brother. Maybe I was right in the first place, and it was his ghost that I saw. But if David was still alive, I vowed that I'd find him—and I did."

"It was Mortison?" Peter asked quietly.

"Yes. I thought it was a piece of luck when I caught sight of him on the San Francisco ferry. It was luck, all right, but it turned out to be bad luck, like everything else that comes my way. He was all bundled up, with a muffler over his face, like he had the tooth-ache. But he not only looked like Mr. Jerome — he walked like him. So I screwed around till I got a look at his face, and then I was sure. I figure he killed his brother, took the ring and the money, and then wrote that note to the police to fasten it onto me. I couldn't prove it on him, but by the time I got through talking to him, I'd know, all right."

"It couldn't have been like that," Peter interrupted. "Even if Mortison was really David de la Montanya—and maybe he was — he didn't steal the ring and wallet. This is another ring altogether, his own, most likely. But what did he tell you?"

"He didn't tell me anything. I followed him, and found out where he lived. Then I hung around, waiting for a chance to get him alone. At last I met him, coming back from one of the hill pastures.

"'I'm Joe Lynn,' I says, 'and I've come to settle accounts with you.'

"He didn't answer me. He just gave me one look, and then he began to run. He was a fast runner, too, but I was after him, and got to the cabin almost as quick as he did, and followed him in before he could shut the door.

"'So you're the man,' I said, 'that was willing to let another fellow go to prison for life for a job he never done. Maybe you don't know what prison's like, 10 years of it,' I said.

"He seemed cool enough then, though he was still out of breath from the chase he'd led me down the path to the cabin.

"'I do not know,' he said. 'That's why I don't wonder you're after me. But you wouldn't understand.'

"He went over to the desk, and pulled open the drawer, me standing over him. I thought he was after a check book, and it made me mad to think he had the idea he could pay me off with money. Do you suppose money would give me back those 10 years?

"'That's not what I want,' I told him. 'I want to do to you what you done to me. I want to take your name away from you, the way you took mine. You 'most forget you ever had a name, when you've been nothing but a number long enough. I want you to know what it's like—'

"'The man doesn't live that can lock me up!' he shouted. And then I saw he was reaching for—not his check book, but his gun, that lay in the drawer.

"When I saw him get hold of the gun, I forgot everything. I grabbed my own gun out of my pocket, and shot him in the neck, before he could turn. The shock jarred his fingers loose from the gun, and it dropped back into the drawer. His arm dropped at his side, all limp-like."

"But if he reached for his pistol first, your shot was plain self-defense!" Peter exclaimed.

"Yeah!" Lynn snarled with abysmal sarcasm. "Just ask any jury to believe that, of a man that's already been under life sentence for murder. You've only my word for it, anyway. I don't see why you believe it, yourself."

"I dunno," Peter said reflectively. "I just do. Maybe it's because I can't imagine that anybody would have such a zest for unadorned truth that he'd stick to one improbable story, even though he got 'life' for it, and then come around and tell another one, if it was a lie. Lying just doesn't seem to be your forte."

"It happened just like he says," Schnitzler interrupted with calm certainty.

"What do you know about it?" Lynn growled. "You'd better look out, grandpa, and not get mixed up in no trouble. I've got enough, as it is."

"I know," the old man announced with slow gravity, "because I saw it. It was just as he said. I heard Mr. Mortison come running down the path, and I squatted down under the window, afraid to leave for fear he might see me. Then I peeked up over the sill, and I saw Mr. Mortison reach for his pistol, and this other gentleman, he shot him."

"You saw it? You knew all the time who killed him? Then why in heaven's name didn't you say so?" Peter's questions tumbled over one another. "Do you mean to say you just sat back and let an innocent woman be tried for murder?"

Schnitzler was unmoved by Peter's outburst.

"I knew that she would not be found guilty," he said with sturdy assurance.

"You did!" Peter jeered. "Then you knew a darn sight more than any one else did. It was a narrow squeak, if ever there was one."

"But nobody was hexing her with the ring," Schnitzler explained with patient lucidity. "The ring could not hurt her—only Mortison. So I know she would be all right."

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The stock market lacked a cushion of supporting orders today and slumped down heavily.

Secretary Mellon's pronouncement on the state of government finances, the weakness in Liberties and Treasuries which had been the bulwarks of the reviving bond list and the Steel Corporation's fourth quarter earnings statement found speculative sentiment in favor of a decline and shorts pressed their advantage. Recent covering had left the market culnerable to selling except the tobaccos. Net declines excevpt the tobaccos. Net declines ranged from 1 to 5 points. Trading, however, remained light and sales approximated 1,600,000 shares. In accordance with its new policy, the exchange compiled the turnover to the nearest hundred thousand.

Midweek reports from the steel trade showed a smaller rate of increase, for estimates placed operations at 47 per cent of capacity, a gain of only 1 per cent.

Mr. Mellon's warning as to the effect on the security markets and business recovery of a large government bond issue to provide for immediate cash payment of the adjustment compensation certificates was read tentatively in Wall Street, where there were some expressions of concern over the decline in government securities. Banking circles want a strong bond market as insurance for ready and favorable financing by industry and the improvement in bonds since the December break has been regarded as the outstanding exhibit in the case for restored confidence.

Directors of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company today declared extra dividends of $1 on the common and "B" stocks, payable March 2, to stock of record February 9. Similar disbursements were made a year ago.

Directors of Worthington Pump & Machinery Company have declared back dividends of $1.75 on the Class "A" preferred and $1.50 on the Class "B" preferred stocks, clearing up final accumulations on these issues. Regular dividends also were declared.

Jones & Laughlin Steel Company quarterly dividend of $1 on the common stock.

Lima Locomotive Works: Special dividend of $2, payable February 17 to stock of record February 7.

The Pennsylvania railroad regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent payable February 28 to stockholders of record February 2.

Directors of the Wabash Railway Company have deferred action on the quarterly dividend of $1.25 on the preferred "A" stock and the dividend on the preferred "B" stock for 1930. In 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929 payments of $5 each were made on the "B" preferred.

Directors of the Atlantic Gulf & West Indies Steamship Lines have taken no action on the common dividend, ordinarily due at this time. Three payments of $1 each quarterly have been made on this issue during the last nine months, although the stock was not placed on a regular dividend basis.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 10 points down to 10.00. Receipts 729; shipments, 387; stocks, 150,165.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A further advance in cotton at the opening today on continued covering and trade buying was followed by reactions under realizing or liquidation and selling by spot houses which was supposed to be against purchases in the south. May contracts after advancing to 10.71 at the start sold off to 10.52 and closed at 10.53 with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 8 to 12 points.

Liverpool cables said that covering and foreign buying had been supplied by hedge selling in that market and reported fair cloth sales to the continent and Argentina Exports today 14,156, making 4,450,195 so far this season. Port receipts 14,433. United States port stocks 4,076,064.

7 TO 11-POINT LOSSES OCCUR AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The volume of trading in the cotton market showed very little improvement here today. In the early trading prices improved owing to favorable cables and some trade buying, but later prices eased off due to weakness in the stock market coupled with lack of sustained support, losing 14 to 17 points from the early highs and bringing the price level 6 to 8 points below the previous close.

The market was a shade more active in the late trading and prices continued to ease off due to selling by ring traders, making new lows at 10.28 for March, 10.51 for May and 10.99 for October or 18 to 20 points under the early highs. Prices rallied 2 to 3 points at the end due to a little covering, March closing at 10.30, May at 10.54 and October at 11.01 or 8 to 11 points net lower on those active months.

Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Cottonseed oil was fairly active today, but trading was largely in the form of exchanging from the near to the more distant deliveries. As a rule locals and wire houses were transferring lines in nearby deliveries into more distant positions with refiners on the other side. Early steadiness gave way to an easier tone later because of the declining movement in cotton, grains, lard and stocks.

Closing prices were 5 to 8 points net lower. Sales were 7,650 barrels, prime crude 6.37½@6.50; prime summer yellow spot 7.00; March closed 7.42; May 7.53; July 7.66; September 7.74.

NEW ORLEANS.

Brokers' Views

Cotton Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The selling of cotton increased Wednesday owing to easiness in other markets and rather persistent selling by spot houses. As result values dropped about 75 cents a bale for old crop months and half dollar for new. The market may be influenced by other markets temporarily but not for long as we are rapidly approaching the time when acreage reports will become the dominant factor. We are inclined to believe that these will help the market.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Cotton developed a reactionary tone reflecting an easier technical position after the recent covering, a moderate increase in southern hedge offerings and a falling off in the demand. Final prices showed a net loss of 8 to 12 points. The decline was promoted by the easier stock market and an impression that the south was easing up somewhat and disposed to sell a little more freely.

BEER & CO.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—With Liverpool cables as due to 2 better, the cotton market opened 3 points higher today, probably influenced by a better spot demand and encouraging news from Japan. The steadiness at Liverpool was attributed to strength in the Egyptian and Indian markets. Trade demand fell off after the early trading and prices declined somewhat from the opening high.

American cotton crop service estimates final 1930 cotton crop at 13,940,000 running bales. Total ginnings last season in running bales were 14,548,000 bales. They base their estimate on light ginnings to January 1. They add that the winter so far has been ideal for successful survival of a large number of weevils.

We continue to favor buying cotton on recessions.

HUBBARD BROS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The opening was steady on better cables. There was more general trade demand during the first hour. This buying, though small, found market rather bare of goods and prices advanced 10 points. Cables from Japan reporting the decision to increase mill operations before April 1 had little effect on the market, although it was quite a decided change from recent cables. The trade bought on limits and the decline was gradual. There was no recovery after the break and the market closed at about the low of the day.

Liverpool futures are due: March 5.47; May 5.54.

Stock Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Overnight consideration of United States Steel fourth quarter earning statement seems to have produced mixed reactions on sentiment. Thus the trading fraternity evidently is at odds with that division of market opinion which represents the more determined and forward looking holders of securities.

The former were successful in translating the immediate unfavorable aspects of the steel report into a trading setback. On other hand investors who may logically be expected to take a broader view undoubtedly look upon steel statement as water over the dam.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The stock market continued to sell off during the afternoon although there was no gain in volume and no bad breaks. It was merely a small but steady selling pressure that carried stocks lower. The effects of the United States Steel earnings statement were probably exhausted during the morning market. It was the action of the bond market and the reasons back of the softness in government issues that hurt sentiment on the stock market during the afternoon. It was reported that banks were heavy sellers of government obligations because of fear that cash payments of veterans' insurance certificates would result from congressional action necessitating a bond issue of $3,400,000,000, the flotation of which leading banks would be called to assist.

DOBBS & CO.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Reactionary tendencies asserted themselves definitely in Wednesday's market, as anticipated. Failure of the industrial averages to follow the railroad averages into new high ground is an indication that lower prices will rule for the immediate future. In our opinion, the technical position alone warrants the deduction that the reaction will run somewhat further before meeting resistance.

BEER & CO.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Stocks declined gradually Wednesday, though there was little increase in volume.

The two rally tops now established during the current month present a presumable temporary limitation to the current rally. It is possible that it will now be necessary to test the bottom of the reaction a week and a half ago. Meantime a conservative attitude is certainly justified.

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Under sudden fire from offerings to Chicago by other principal market centers, corn plunged down today to the lowest prices reached here since 1922. Urgent orders to stop losses of holders of corn future delivery contracts brought about a maximum fall of 2 5-8 cents a bushel, with the final dealings at the day's bottom figures. Rye outdid low records unequaled as far back as 1894.

Corn closed unsteady, 2 cents to 2 5-8 down; rye 1 1-4 to 1 3-8 off; wheat unchanged to 1 1-4 lower; oats at 5-8 to 7-8 decline, and provisions showing 2 to 22 cents setback.

Persistent springlike temperatures reducing demand from feeders of live stock was a pronounced disturbing factor.

Liquidating sales by owners of rye came about in large degree through sympathy with corn.

Wheat was influenced bearishly by forecasts that the aggregate on ocean passage would shortly assume much larger proportions. Oats declined with other cereals.

after the Rain

. . . the RAINBOW!

During a downpour that had drenched the countryside for several days, some one asked an old farmer if he believed the rain would never stop.

. . . Hitching up his shoulder straps, the farmer replied, "Well, sir, up to now it always has."

Here is a most apt illustration of the law of probabilities—which applies to the securities markets no less than to the weather. The best answer to the question of whether stock prices will ever return to their normal levels is that they "always have."

Certainly the law of probabilities justifies the belief that the present is a time of unusual opportunity. The investor may take advantage of this opportunity through a single investment in Diversified Trustee Shares, Series C, which provides a participating interest in the common stocks of the 50 leading corporations listed to the left.

BY DONALD C. BOLLES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Prices of United States government securities dropped sharply on the stock exchange today as banks, apprehensive over the possibility of a huge bond issue to finance the redemption of veterans' insurance certificates now being considered by congress, turned to the selling side of the market.

Both Liberty bonds and long-term treasury issues suffered in the decline, with the day's losses ranging from 1-4 of a point to 1-2. Traders said that the strong statement of Secretary Mellon, in which he called attention to the disastrous effect a three billion dollar bond issue would have on the economic situation of the country, had a steadying influence on the market.

Most of the selling was attributed to New York banks. Treasury 3 3-8s of 1943-47 reacted 17-32nds and Treasury 4 1-4s declined 1-2 a point. The decline in Liberties was the sharpest of the week, averaging 10-32nds of a point.

The weakness of the government list and the reaction in the share market had an unsettling effect on corporate domestic investments. Second grade rails suffered the most with losses of a point or more scattered throughout the list but even the prime rail bonds were depressed. The reaction in most utility issues was limited to small fractions and was partially offset by gains in some of the seasoned obligations. Convertibles reacted with stocks. Foreign loans were irregularly higher.

Sugar, Coffee, Rice.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Raw sugar was unchanged today as far as spot supplies were concerned, with refiners showing little interest, although sugars were available at last paid prices of 3.40. The only sale reported was 9,000 bags of Philippines for June-July shipment to an outport refiner at 3.49.

Raw futures were irregular, notwithstanding the optimistic tenor of the statement of Chairman Chadbourne declaring that impressive progress and real results had been obtained at his conferences abroad for the stabilization of sugar. The market opened 1 point higher to 2 points lower and showed little variation, with the close net unchanged to 1 point lower. Approximate sales were 35,750 tons, including over half in the form of exchanges. March closed 1.28; May 1.34; July 1.42; September 1.50; December 1.59; January 1.61.

Refined was unchanged. There were fair withdrawals against old contracts, but new business was light and supplied through second-hands. Prices were listed at 4.70 for fine granulated by refiners, with second-hands available at around 4.62½.

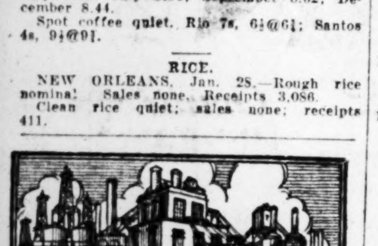

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Coffee futures were quiet today with the price movement narrow and rather irregular. No. 7 contracts opened 3 lower and closed net 1 higher to 1 lower. Sales 3,000. Santos contracts opened 1 to 6 lower and closed 1 to 3 higher, sales 14,000. Closing quotations, No. 7 contracts: March 5.79; May 5.72; July 5.64; September 5.57; December 5.49. Santos: March 8.92; May 8.72; July 8.64; September 8.52; December 8.44.

Spot coffee quiet. Rio 7s, 6½@6¾; Santos 4s, 9½@9¾.

RICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 28.—Rough rice nominal. Sales none. Receipts 3,086. Clean rice quiet; sales none; receipts 411.

CURB MARKET GROWS HEAVY

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The curb market turned heavy today, but trading slackened, and stock was not pressed for sale.

The day's turnover of 375,000 shares was 21,600 less than yesterday's. Selling was most active in the utility shares, and the market appeared to take its cue from the heaviness of the big board.

American Gas & Electric, Electric Power & Light warrants and American Light & Traction lost 2 points; Electric Bond & Share, American & Foreign Power warrants, Middle West Utilities and United Light A, 1 point. United Gas sagged a point.

Oils yielded only moderately, despite the unfavorable weekly petroleum statistics.

Wall Street Briefs.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Directors of the American Tobacco Company today voted to sell 56,712 shares of the company's stock to employes at par. The action was taken under authorization voted by stockholders last July empowering the directors to sell stock to employes.

J. C. Chick, general sales manager of Cadillac Motor Car Company, a division of General Motors Corporation, said business of the company this month will exceed that of January last year by at least 25 per cent. He based the estimate on sales figures for the first 20 days this month.

The daily gold statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York today showed imports of $1,947,000 from Colombia.

A banking syndicate is expected shortly to offer an issue of $25,000,000 five per cent preferred stock to the North American Company, callable at 107.

The Textile Organ, published by the Tubize Chatillon Corporation, says that the textile industry as a whole will show more strength than general business during the first half of this year, due to the fact that prices for both raw and finished products record greater deflation in 1930 than prices for other commodities.

S. R. Dresser Manufacturing Company, makers of pipe line fittings, had net profit of $923,629 in 1930, equal to $5.24 a share on the Class "B" stock, compared with $903,394, or $5.03 on the "B" in 1929.

EXTRA DIVIDENDS HELP 'STREET'S' PULSE

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Extra dividends by two tobacco companies gave Wall Street a fill for its pipe today, despite diminished payments from other sources.

Announcements of extra dividend disbursements which will aggregate nearly $8,000,000 were made by the American and the Liggett & Myers Tobacco companies, while a railroad announced that action on its preferred dividends would be deferred, a steamship and a railway equipment company omitted payments, and a small steel company reduced its disbursement.

The American Tobacco Company announced extra dividends of $1 a share on the common and Class B shares in addition to the regular quarterly payments of $1.25, and Liggett & Myers ordered extras of like amount on its common and Class B shares in addition to regular quarterly dividend of $1.

The tobacco industry, particularly cigaret manufacturing, has managed to increase its profits for 1930, despite widespread industrial depression. American Tobacco disclosed that preliminary figures indicate 1930 net of not less than $42,500,000, which compares with $30,182,700 in 1929. Liggett & Myers reported 1930 profit of $24,002,315, or $1,985,187 more than 1929 earnings.

The Wabash Railway, deferred action of the preferred Class A and B dividends, with the indication that the matter may be reconsidered should earnings improve in the near future. It was announced that the Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Steamship Company had taken no action on its common dividend, due at this time, and Poor & Co., railway equipment makers, had omitted the quarterly payment of 50 cents on the Class B shares. The Jones & Laughlin Steel Company reduced its annual rate from $5 to $4 a share.

Highlights OF Wall Street

By CHARLES W. STORM
Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(NANA) Wall Street's perspective of an advancing stock market in the near future was considerably blurred today when Secretary of the Treasury Mellon discussed the possibilities of a tax increase and the issuance of a big government bond issue which would hurt the bond market if present congressional plans for cashing the veterans' insurance certificates were put through. The secretary's prediction of a big treasury deficit and his declaration that the cash redemption would disrupt the nation's financial structure upset the street's views of the prospects of a bull market in stocks and furnished the professional bears with ammunition on which to offer stocks at concessions in prices.

Offerings of stock were not on a heavy scale but their weight was sufficient in the absence of any notable buying to impart heaviness to the general list, resulting in declines of from 1 to 2 points in the leading stocks and from 2 to 4 points in specialties. In the last 15 minutes of trading there was a feeble rally from the low levels but the slight rebound was unimpressive and lacked aggressiveness.

WABASH DIVIDENDS PASSED.

Railroad shares were lower in sympathy with the downward movement of the industrials. Offerings of the former were also influenced by the announcement of the passing of the dividends on the Wabash railroad preferred "A" and preferred dividends which have been at the rate of $5 each annually. Announcement of this action was followed by sharp breaks in the prices of the Wabash railroad shares. The passing of these dividends served to direct attention to the sharp contraction which has occurred in the earnings of the common carriers.

STEEL EARNINGS FACTOR.

Digestion by the public of the poor earnings of the United States Steel Corporation for the fourth quarter of last year also had an unfavorable influence on prices of stocks and seemed to lend color to the reports that earnings for the first quarter of this year would make an unfavorable showing. The street, however, seemed to forget that the steel business has been increasing and that present orders are being taken at prices $1 a ton in excess of those prevailing in the last quarter of 1930. Announcement that operations in the steel industry last week increased 1 per cent failed to cause any enthusiasm by reason of the smallness of the expansion.

TOBACCO BRIGHT SPOT.

One bright spot in the day's business was the increased strength and activity of American Tobacco shares. The reason for the sudden increased demand for the stock and its advance of more than 2 points in the face of general heaviness came to light after the close of trading when the directors of the company announced an extra dividend of $1 a share. The prosperous conditions which prevail in the tobacco industry were also emphasized by the declaration of the usual extra dividend of $1 a share by the Liggett & Myers Company.

Shorts trapped in Auburn Auto continued to be punished, that issue showing strength most of the day.

Professional shorts continued to concentrate much of their selling on Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak and Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing and succeeding in causing substantial declines in those issues.

MITCHELL ILLNESS POSTPONES PROBE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Investigation by the house expenditures committee of wire tapping by prohibition agents was postponed today because of the illness of Attorney General Mitchell.

Chairman Williamson said the hearing would be held as soon as the attorney general is able to attend. February 5 was set tentatively for the inquiry.

The attorney general was confined to his home by what was described as "a touch of grippe." He was ordered by his physician to remain in bed.

Prohibition Director Woodcock, who was taken ill recently while on a trip to New York state, returned to his office yesterday. He also was scheduled to appear at the wire tapping hearing.

COURT FREES THREE IN GEM THEFT CASE

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—William J. O'Connor, Buffalo politician and sportsman, was left the only defendant today in a $100,000 stolen jewel trial when General Sessions Judge Max Levine dismissed the charge against Alexander Friedman, after having ordered the acquittal of Mrs. Hilder Carter and George Cole.

Friedman was freed by the third directed verdict of the day, after Judge Levine had once refused to drop the charges against him and had taken under advisement a motion for their dismissal.

YOUTH PICTURE AT PARAMOUNT

"The Truth About Youth" is the title of the talking screen feature which comes to the Paramount theater for the last half of this week, opening this morning. It is really the picturization of H. V. Esmond's delightful stage comedy, "When We Were Twenty-One."

Leading roles in the clever and whimsical story of youthful love are taken by Loretta Young, lovely young star, and David Manners, who did such a wonderful performance as the young hero of "Journey's End." Others filling important roles in the cast include Myrna Loy, Conway Tearle, Myrtle Stedman, Yola D'Avril, etc.

The story is interpreted for the screen without any loss of that delicious charm that made it such a delight upon the stage. It is also notable for a plot with ample action and situation development to sustain a sense of thrilled interest throughout.

The last edition of Paramount Sound News, a cartoon comedy and other short features complete the screen bill, while the two singing ushers, discovered by manager Ed Beck in his house personnel, will continue the program on the mezzanine floor.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION No. 88

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan lowered Flora to the ground, whispering: "Wait—he must not escape." But she followed slowly after him. Tarzan heard a low whine to his right. "Jad-bal-ja" he murmured, "Heel!" and the great black-maned lion crept close to him. An instant later the three came to the river's bank and through the tall grasses growing there looked down upon the little camp beneath.

Tarzan, to his consternation, saw a counterpart of himself standing before a little fire while, slowly approaching the man with outstretched arms, was a woman. The ape-man even heard her endearing words, addressed to her huge companion, and at the sound a strange complex of emotion suddenly overwhelmed him. He saw the man at the fireside stepping forward with open arms to embrace the eager woman. Rage dominated his mood.

Then Tarzan separated the grasses and stepped to the very edge of the embankment, his voice shattering the jungle with a single word. "JANE!" he cried. Instantly the man and the woman turned and looked up at him where his figure was dimly revealed in the flickering light of the campfire. At sight of him the man wheeled and raced for the jungle. Tarzan leaped the rivulet below and ran toward the woman. "Jane," he cried, "it is you!"

The bewildered woman looked first at the retreating figure of the man she had been about to embrace and then turned her eyes toward Tarzan. She drew her fingers across her brow, then took a faltering step toward her husband. "Heaven help me," she cried, "what does this mean? Who are you? And if you are Tarzan, who was he?" Tarzan's laugh reassured her. "I am Tarzan, believe me," he said, "the true Tarzan of the Apes."

FOUR WOUNDED IN CHICAGO FIGHT

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—(AP)—In a spectacular gun battle that followed the attempted robbery of the Baskin clothing store on Michigan boulevard, four men were wounded today and the two negro holdup men were captured.

The two negroes held up the store, took all the money out of the cash register and tied up several employes and a customer. David Brown, one of the clerks, followed them as they ran from the store and shouted to the traffic officer at Michigan boulevard and Wacker drive.

The officer, Francis Stanton, opened fire on the negroes and in the exchange that followed he and three other persons were wounded, none seriously.

Must Keep on Tramping To Win $5,000 Wager

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Footsore from tramping 19,100 miles of the highways and byways of the nation, W. H. Chapman today faced 900 miles more before July 10 in an effort to collect a now-regretted wager.

Chapman, who is 81, was here on his way afoot to New York, where he expects to collect $5,000 and to fulfill a contract made in 1923 to write stories for a magazine.

The wager was, he said, that he could not outlast two younger men on a 20,000-mile walking tour. He said he set out from Milwaukee at the age of 73 to see North America and win the wager. The two other men, he said, dropped out before they left their own state, deciding the life of the open roads does not make up for weary feet.

Chapman said he had reached the same conclusion but he must finish the journey to get the reward and the contract for magazine stories.

BETTER PROTECTION FROM FIRES PLANNED

Assistants to Chief Will Remain in Congested Areas of City.

First steps in division of Atlanta into fire quadrants for "better protection of the lives and property of Atlantans" and as an economy move were taken Wednesday by the board of firemasters.

In the future, the borough will be districted in accordance with the numbering system, and senior captains will ride their apparatus to all outlying fires, thus permitting assistant chiefs to stay nearer the congested business districts unless their presence is demanded on the alarm.

Attaches of the department declared that the system will save wear of departmental machines, and give just as good protection to property as formerly and at the same time leave the assistant chiefs available for immediate use in case of a large blaze in the central business district. Another advantage would be that captains would be given more actual service and responsibility.

The water tower, which also was slated to fall under the need for greater economy in operation of the department, was preserved on recommendation of Chief John Terrell.

Raymond Curtis, councilman from the tenth ward was revealed as the author of a resolution passed at the last session of the board, empowering Chief Terrell to select all future additions to the department. First published reports were that Councilman Ed L. Almand, of the third ward, was author.

STAUNCH DRY PAPER TURNS TO REPEAL

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 28.—(UP)—The Buffalo Evening News, long a staunch supporter of the eighteenth amendment, published an editorial today urging prompt revision of the prohibition law.

The editorial explained that the paper has, for 11 years, stood behind the cause of prohibition. "The ugly truth cannot be concealed," it said, "that conditions in some respects now are worse than they were before prohibition. The law has come to be held in contempt by many who in the first instance gave it support of faith."

MacDonald Wins Commons' Vote Despite Churchill's Bitter Wit

LONDON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was labeled a "boneless wonder" in the house of commons tonight, but he walloped his conservative enemies in two divisions nevertheless and carried the bitterly-disputed trades dispute bill on second reading.

From hours of debate marked by the humorous and sarcastic sallies of Winston Churchill, conservative stalwart, the labor premier emerged victorious over two motions offered by Stanley Baldwin, leader of the conservatives.

Thus he saved his office, for the government almost certainly would have resigned had it been beaten tonight over the bill which aims at greater freedom for the British union man.

Before the divisions were called near midnight Churchill kept the house rocking in laughter with his barbed sallies and his voice was almost drowned out when he turned his raillery on Mr. MacDonald.

Recalling a youthful visit to Barnum's circus, Churchill said he chiefly desired to see an exhibit described as the boneless wonder, but his parents considered that the spectacle would be too revolting and demoralizing for his youthful eye.

Then Churchill gave an imaginary picture of a recent conversation between MacDonald and Lloyd George.

"We've never been friends," Churchill had the prime minister saying to the liberal leader, "at least, not holiday friends, but we've both been premiers and dog does not eat dog.

"Just look at this monstrous bill which those wild fellows of trade unionists have foisted upon me. Do me service and I'll never forget it; take it upstairs and cut its dirty throat."

The "upstairs" was a reference to the committee room, where the bill is expected to be modified out of recognition.

Churchill also used sand paper on Tom Shaw, the labor minister of war. In this connection he had launched a general attack on trade unions, declaring they had attained a privileged position in the nation and had supported the laborite politicians until they were the spoiled darlings of parliament.

Here he brought in Shaw as an example of power running wild and cited a recent speech of the war minister as an example of unseemly arrogance. Then he dug up the following Biblical quotation from Deuteronomy 32:15, charging that it applied fitly to Shaw:

"But Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked."

The house cackled uproariously as all eyes turned to the rotund and comfortable person of the war minister.

When the division was called the members hurried into the lobby in great excitement, and while the count was proceeding reporters in the house heard "Auld Lang Syne" sung loudly in the government lobby.

After the members flocked back into the house from the division chambers, the figures were announced in a scene of intense excitement. Laborites mounted benches to cheer and shout, waving papers and handkerchiefs wildly.

Talbotton Church Will Pay Tribute To Nathan Straus

TALBOTTON, Ga., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Talbotton Baptist church Sunday school will pay tribute to a Jew Sunday night in memorial services honoring the late Nathan Straus, wealthy merchant who once lived here.

Mr. Straus spent part of his childhood here and his father, Lazarus Straus, sent him and his brother, Oscar Straus, to the Sunday school. There they were taught principally from the Old Testament by the late Hugh Ball, of Talbotton.

A program, including music, will include "A Summary and Life of Nathan Straus," "The Straus Family in Talbotton," "The Early Religious Training of Nathan Straus," "The Ministry of Nathan Straus to Suffering Humanity" and "Nathan Straus as an International Philanthropist."

Jewish friends and relatives of the Straus family have been invited to attend the services.

ADVERTISE MORE, IS CURTIS' ADVICE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Intelligent advertising will make fortunes in the opinion of Cyrus H. K. Curtis, president of the Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia.

He expressed his opinion in an address before 200 members and guests of the Committee of One Hundred, Miami Beach social organization, meeting last night at the home of Gar Wood, speedboat enthusiast.

The policy of some advertisers to save expenses by cutting down on their advertising is "foolish," Mr. Curtis said. "Everything that is done is built on advertising, and intelligent advertising will make your fortunes."

Mr. Curtis said his company, which spent $1,000,000 last year in advertising, plans to spend $2,000,000 this year. "In a period of depression," he asserted, "we must run as fast as we can to stay where we are."

Delightful features of the program were provided by the Girls' High orchestra and choral class, each numbering about 25 student members, who rendered several musical selections. Principal speakers were Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills church, and Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of city schools. Diplomas were presented by W. W. Gaines, president of the board of education.

Students who completed the prescribed course in two years and a half were Leila Camp, Elizabeth Cudlipp, Helen Ennis, Penelope Gialelis, Virginia Pinson, Enoree West and Marguerite Wolff. He said today he would introduce a bill, indorsed by the public health service under which the government would take over a laboratory now operated by the state of Montana for the production of a serum used in treating the disease.

The bill provides for an appropriation of $75,000 for purchase of the present facilities and $75,000 for their extension.

PRESS MAJORITY FOUND TO BE DRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A conclusion that the nation's anti-prohibition newspapers as a whole have approximately double the circulation of those favoring the dry law was reached today by the Methodist board of temperance.

In a survey of 1,346 daily papers having an aggregate circulation of 32,994,609 the board placed only 520 of these as definitely "wet." Their combined circulation, however, was estimated at more than 21,000,000 or 64 per cent, while that of the 809 "dry" papers was 10,488,553, or 32 per cent. There were 115, mostly of small circulation, described as "neutral."

Few other prohibition developments came during the day.

Prohibition Director Woodcock said new regulations were being considered to give dentists the same amount of medicinal liquor as is now allowed physicians.

Commissioner Doran, of the industrial alcohol bureau, announced the adoption of one of the Wickersham commission recommendations. It would permit physicians to enter on their prescription stubs, without specifying in the prescription itself, the ailment for which whisky was prescribed.

The senate appropriations committee approved the fund requested by the prohibition bureau, adding $147,180 to bring the total to $11,516,680.

The house expenditures committee, meantime, postponed its investigation of wire tapping by prohibition agents because of the illness of Attorney-General Mitchell. He was said not to be seriously ill.

The Methodist temperance board also made available the figures of another survey, covering 1,438 newspapers, of which 37 per cent were said not to give prohibition an "even break" while 35 per cent was described as "biased" in handling prohibition news. Board officials said that not all of these, by any means, were "wet" papers.

From the point of view of circulation, the 340 newspapers covered in the 11 northeastern states were described as most predominently "wet." Of a total circulation of 13,653,613, the anti-prohibition papers had 10,382,129 circulation, or 76 per cent. In the 14 western states, however, circulation was divided almost evenly, being 47 per cent of "dry" papers and 49 per cent "wet," with the rest neutral.

In the 15 southern states and the District of Columbia the circulation of the papers included was approximately 2,600,000 for and 2,300,000 against prohibition.

U. S. Official Confers With Linton Hopkins

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Assistant Attorney-General Charles P. Sisson, in charge of appointments, today conferred with Linton Hopkins, of Atlanta, regarding the vacancy on the federal court bench for the northern district of Georgia.

The Atlanta man, one of the applicants for the judicial post, came to Washington yesterday. An appointment with the assistant attorney-general was made for him today by members of the state congressional group.

VISUAL EDUCATION MAY BE ELIMINATED

Visual education in the Atlanta public school system will be barred if the board of education concurs in a recommendation of a sub-committee of the current expenditures committee of the board, it became known Wednesday.

Elimination of the department will be recommended as an economy move, and at the same time slashing of several clerks and other office employes will be sought, it was stated. Savings thus effected would be about $10,000 a year.

The current expenditures committee will hold a session before the next regular meeting of the board February 10.

MORE STUDY NEEDED OF AUTO SALE PLAN

Further study will be needed of a proposal of Alderman G. Everett Millican of the tenth ward, to sell all borough-owned cars, operated by various department heads to those using them for municipal business and then add a certain amount to the salaries for maintenance and service, it was decided Wednesday afternoon by the garage committee of council.

Another session has been called for 7:30 o'clock tonight at the garage, Councilman Tom Smith, chairman, declared.

Millican appeared before the committee Wednesday afternoon championing the change, declaring that from $50,000 to $100,000 would be saved annually through such an arrangement.

Several department heads opposed the measure.
